Our National Capital Happenings!

[Our Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, June 8, 1891.

Secretary Foster has returned from New York, and will in a day or two decide what if any, action he will take upon the extraordinary demand made by Messrs. Hayes and Devlin of the Executive Board of the Knights of Labor, which are a part of the fight which has been going on in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing nearly ever since Mr. Meredith was appointed chief of that bureau by the late Secretary Windom. This fight, as understood here, is really between the Knights of Labor and its rival organization, the Federation of Labor, and the trouble seems to be that Mr. Meredith has declined to allow either of them to run the bureau. More than a year ago the Knights of Labor preferred charges against Mr. Meredith and Secretary Windom, after a careful investigation, declared them without foundation.

Since Secretary Foster came into the Cabinet these charges have been again brought forward by the Knights of Labor, and Mr. Meredith was informed that if he would reinstate seven Knights of Labor whom he had discharged for disobedience of orders they would be withdrawn, but as that would have been a tacit acknowledgement of the truth of the charges he, of course, refused to do it. Messrs Hayes and Devlin last week went to the Treasury Department while Secretary Foster was out of town and tried to bluff Assistant Secretary Crounse into acceding to there demand. He told them that as far as he could see there was nothing in the charges they had made against Mr. Meredith. He was then informed that unless Mr. Meredith was removed the whole strength of the Knights of Labor would be thrown against the republican party in the Ohio Campaign this year. Judge Crounse told them that threates would have no effect in this case, unless they could present some good reason why Mr. Meredith should be removed. Messrs Devlin and Hayes then went to the White House and repeated their demand and threat to the President, who simply declined to discuss the matters at all, telling them that Secretary Foster was the proper person to see. Those who are fully conversant with the matter in all its bearings do not think that Secretary Foster will interfere with Mr. Meredith in his methods of conducting the business of his bureau, nor do they believe that Messrs. Hayes and Devlin will dare to attempt to array the Knights of Labor of Ohio against the republican party upon any such flimsy pretext as the discharges of seven men for disobeying orders.

The affair is creating a great deal of talk here, because it is the first time that high officials of any labor organization have attemped such a bold manner to dictate to the Government, and for the same reason the outcome is watched for with much interest, although few believe that the threat is any more than talk.

Secretary Noble is coming back this week, and again there are all sorts of rumors about his early retirement or change to another branch of the Government service, but there is the same lack of authenticity in these rumors that have distinguished all their predecessors. Commissioner Raum is treated in about the same way by the rumor mongers. He says that he has no idea of resigning unless requested to do so by the President, and that the President has recently told him that he was entirely satisfied with his administration of the Pension Office, and yet nearly every one you meet believes that we will have a new Commissioner of Pensions in the near future.

The appointment of Ex-Representative Owen, of Indiana, to be Immigration Commissioner is generally recognized as a peculiarly fitting one Mr. Owen is the author of the bill to restrict immigration; he has made the subject a special study for years, and his appointment was asked for by hundreds of labor organizations in all sections of the country. It is the intention of the administration to strictly enforce the immigration laws, and although they are by no means perfect it is believed that they can be so administered as to remedy many of the worst abuses.

Ex-Senator Blair, who is still in town, drawing salary as minister to China, has turned prophet. He says the republican national platform next year will declare for the free coinage of silver.

The Behring Sea matter is closed at the present. And it is closed on such favorable terms for the United States. The English Govornment has agreed to a closed season for seal killing, and will order all the finadian seal thieving vessels to return to the port from which they started, whilst the American Fur Cympany is to have the privilege of taking 7,500 seal skins from the Priboloff Islands. This conclusion will prevent the uttor destruction of the fur bearing seals which was imminent from the preparations that were made by the Canadian thieving fleet, and leave the settlement of the country to the negotiations that can be brought to a proper conclusion before another season arrives.

It is to be hoped that the Republican farmers of the North are beginning to comprehend the object and the result of the Alliance or third party movement. Mr. L. L. Polk of North Carolina is the President of the Alliance, and he is a very knowing gentleman; in fact he knows it all and is exceedingly willing to talk, either through his own newspaper, the origin of the Alliance in his State, or defectly to the representative of any newspaper who may call upon him. Mr. Polk has been talking again, and he says there will be no split in the Democratic party that is that there will be no third party in the South unless the Democrats should nominate Cleveland for President, in which event the Alliance men would set up business for themselves.

If any one was to say that he proposed to jump over the moon, in the event that the moon came within a mile of the earth's surface, no one would accuse him of having made an extravagant proposition, and yet this is about such a sentiment as President Polk of the Alliance, has put before the people of the country. No one with the least comprehension of the political situation has the slightest idea that the Democrats will nominate Cleveland. Mr. Polk knows that as well as any one else; even his inmature intellect has been capable of comprehending that fact.

His proposition then that the Alliance men of the South will stand by the Democratic party excepting in the event of the nomination of Cleveland, is a declaration that there will be no third party movement in that section, and that all that voted from the southern States, fourteen out of sixteen of which are Alliance States there will be a solid vote for the Democratic candidate.

The Republican enthusiast in the Northwest, who has been led astray by the Farmers Alliance movement, which was led by a few disappointed Republican office seekers, a number of shrewd men like "Jerry" Simpson and a coterie of half crazy cranks like Peffers, would do well to consider this declaration of President Polk's. It is in perfect concurrence with that every other Alliance map in the South has said and revealed the true inwardness of the third party movement.

The Prospects Great.

Another meeting of the fourth of July committee was held on Monday evening to hear reports from various places and to make what further arrangements for the grand celebration on Independence Day. Word was received from various places of companies that wanted to come to Bellefonte and invitations will be extended to them. In the matter of putting up the July posters the work has been properly attended to.

Word was received from Centre Hall that the young men of that place would like to get up a club of fantastics and come to Bellefonte at that time. They will not only be sent an invitation but will be urged to come and with the assurance that they will be given a good position in the line of parade. Also the young men of other places throughout the county are urged to do likewise. Get up as large clubs of fantastics as possible and come to Bellefonte on the fourth.

How many of onr democratic contemporaries will be honest enough to give the administration credit for the diplomatic victory it has won by persuading the British government to give to its proposition for a cessation of the killing of Seals in Behring Sea? And how many of those which have been trying to make it appear that the President had repudiated Mr. Blaine's original proposition and was working upon his own ideas will be fair enough to state that the President did nothing of the sort, but took up the matter just where Mr. Blaine had left it and carried it through.

KENTUCKY Statesmen of the democratic persuasion are devoting most of their time to explaining why, if the Kentuckians are so much in love with Cleveland, they should have at their state convention unanimously adopted. Blackburn's anti-Cleveland resolution. Joe Blackburn isn't making any apologies, nor is Carlisle. They both hate Cleveland and they do not attempt to disguise their feelings.

THE most equitable of all taxes, and at the same time the most difficult to collect is that upon personal property. The death of a Baltimore Millionaire has brought out the fact that for years he paid taxes on $36,500 worth of stocks and bonds when he owned more than $500,000 worth. His estate will have to make up the discrepancy.

THE presence of the Prince of Wales, who, if England will submit to it, will some day be king, on the witness stand, in a case where one of his chosen personal friends figures as a cheating gambler, is not an inspiring sight to Enslishmen, although it may not be without effect in hastening the arrival of the English republic.

ACCORDING to our Kentucky exchanges it is the women of that State who make and unmake its public men. We are pleased to know this, because we have always had an idea that the responsibility was fairly chargably to another famous product of the "Blue grass" State.

THE Philadelphia man who threw up his position as assistant cashier of a bank rather than obey the orders of his superiors to falsify these days of easy and elastic consciences. If there were more like him there would be fewer banks wrecked.

THE regular summer revolution in Hayti was no time this year.

A NEW POWER.

THE WONDERFUL DISCOVERY THAT A TOWANDA MAN HAS MADE.

Watt discovered the power of steam and Fulton utilized it in the steamboat. Franklin called the lightning down from heaven and Morse found use for it in the telegraph, only to be still more enlarged upon years after by Edison in the telephone, phonograph and the great electric currents with which our cities and towns are illuminated today with a brilliancy that rivals the noonday sun. And still the work of inventing and perfecting wonders that appal the world continues. With all the marvelous feats performed in this direction in the past we seem to have only as yet just crossed the line of infancy in that respect. Everyday something new is developed and brought into existence to become a nine day's wonder, then to take its place with the rank and file of other inventions and are afterward viewed as nothing out of the common run of the many pillars and posts that support this grand old universe. The latest out is a road carriage run by a power yet unknown to the world, a device planned, projected and executed from the fertile brain of man, and having no visible power, but deriving such from the weight of the occupant or occupants. The vehicle can be made any size, suitable for one or a dozen. All that is necessary is to take their seats, loosen a brake and the machine moves off, the speed being controlled by levers made for that purpose. Hills are no terror and grades no obstacles to this mighty, unknown and invisible power, and when once it is brought permanently before the public, as the inventor says it will be in a short time, it is going to make considerable of a commotion all over the land. The inventor is John M. Edson, of Towanda, Pa., who is already well known for several good inventions he has perfected and placed before the public, among which are self-feeders, nail feed and device for taking up lost motion on self-feeders. He has applied for patents on his road carriage in every civilized country, and expects to have it ready for introduction soon, an event that will be watched with interest.

A COMPLETE REGISTRATION.

The new registration law, if its provisions are enfroced, and there is no reason why they should not be, will result in a complete and clean registry of voters each year. Under the law the Assessors of Registration are now compelled to begin a house to house visitation on the secone Monday of June, with an absolutley clean book, and by visiting each dwelling house in the voting district obtain as near as possible the census of qualified voters. The carrying on the registry list of voters who have removed from the district or who have died will thus be prevented, and likewise the numerous omissions of the names of qualified voters.

The Philadelphia Times in an editorial yesterday, says:

The Assessors will begin the work of making a new enrollment of the voters to day. The new law requires that this shall be done by an actual house to house visitation, no names being allowed upon the list except of those who are found to be bona fide residents when the assessment is made. The Commissionors have acted promptly in preparing the new blanks and with the law printed on the inside cover of the book there is no good reason why the assessment should not be correctly and honestly made.

It has been said that the apparent readiness of the Republican leaders in this city to accept the provisions of the new law and to do all in their power to secure an honest enrollment is a blind, and that it is intended to neglect to enroll Democrats in strongly Republican precincts to the extent to which it can de done safely. This may be an idle rumor, but to guard against all possibility of unfairness every voter Democrat or Republican, should see for himself that he is enrolled. This is the duty of every citizen who has enough interest in public affairs to be worthy of the name of a citizen, and it is especially desirable that at this time, when an entirely new enrollment under a new law is being made, every citizen should take an interest in seeing that it is made properly.

As for the Assessors, Republican and Democrats alike, they should carefully study the section of the law which provides a penalty of $1,000 and two years' imprisonment for failure to assess those who are honestly entitled to vote. The enforcement of this law will be looked after as no enrollment law ever was before in the state of Pennsylvania, and the only safe course for the Assessor is to enroll every man who has a right to vote regardless of whether he is Republican, Democrat, Prohibitionist, Greenbacker or what not, and to refuse to enroll those who are not legally voting citizens.

Everybody, from the Asseseors to the humblest private citizen, should cordially co-operate to secure for this time an honest assessment list, to the end that charges of dishonest elections in Philadelphia may be heard no more.

The State Teachers' Association.

The thirty-seventh annual meeting of the State Teachers' Association will be held in Public Hall, Beford, Pa., on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, July 7th, 8th and 9th. The programme to be observed is an interesting one. Among those who will address the meeting are Governor Pattison, ex-Governor Beaver. Major Gourley, of Pittsburg, and other prominent men. At the close of the session an excursiou will be organized for Harper's Ferry, Winchester, Luray Caverns, Natural Bridge, and the famous White Sulphur Springs. Last year the Association met in Mauch Chunk.

Biblical Facts and Figures.

It is told that the Bible contains 3,595, 480 letters, 773,746 words, 31,173 verses, 1,186 chapters and 66 books. The words and occurs 46,277 times, the word Lord 1,855 times. The word reverend occurs but once, which is in the 9th verse of the 111th Pslam. The middle verse is the 8th verse of the 118th Pslam. The 21st verse of the 7th chapter of Ezra contains all the letters of the alphabet exept the letter j. The 19th chapter of 11. Kings and the 37th chapter of Isaiah are alike. The longest verse is the 35th verse of the 9th chapter of Esther. The shortest verse is the 35th verse of the 111th chapter of St. John. These are no words or names of more than six syllables.

SENATOR STANFORD has two much common sense to be roped into accepting an empty Presidential nomination from any third party, at least we think he has and besides, he is too good a republican to allow his name to be used for any such purpose.

LAST year ex-President Cleveland bought a summer cottage at Buzzard's Bay, Massachusetts. Now the writers call the place "Tudor Haven."

THE new immigration building on Ellis Island, New York harbor, is to be roofed with America tin, and still the tin-plate liar says we are not making tin-plate.

PHILADELHPIA banker's would seem also to be sprinters.

DISCUSSING MONEY.

The very able article of Mr. Milliken's which we published has called forth the following editorial from one of the best edited journals in our country:

FINANCIAL DELUSIONS.

There was a time when the most powerful human intellects were deluded by the gibberish of the astrologer and the alchemist. But time advances; facts accumulate; doubts arise. Faint glimpses of truth begin to appear, and shine more and more when the perfect day appears.

So writes MacCauley, the great historian, whose mental power and broad scope of observation is indelibly stamped on English history, and all that is legitimately connected therewith.

And so, we may say, to-day—following in the same line of observaiton and analogy—there was a time when intelligent men, with broad capacity for information and intellectual casuistry, were deluded by the gibberish and pretense of the hard money advocates, who assumed and made bold to proclaim the false doctrine that gold, and nothing else, was money, and, in fact, that anything else was specious and practically good for nothing. They said that paper money was a cheat, and much more of the same sort.

Well, this delusion had its way for a time, and seemed to have full control of the general public mind. But, like many other delusions, it was not destined to last. At first, when the new revolution began to develop among the people, faint glimpses of truth regarding the money question began to appear and to shine more and more, until in due course of time, and in the broad light of the new day which the present time is ushering in, the old sophistries are being fully exposed. The false assumptions and misleading financial theories of the bank and gold speculators, who care more for their own immediate interests than for the government and the people's interests, have been in a great measure exploded, and soon will be numbered with the other delusions of the past.

And so we take courage and hope for the ultimate triumph of the revolution now going on. Happily for the freedom of money exchange, and the reinstatement of the money basis which existed before silver money was demonetized, the light has been turned on so that all can see that will see. And now, no one can fail to understand that the fiat of the government is all sufficient to endow any metal, or fabric, with the quality and legal tender character of money, to make it so.

This is the new day and the philosophy of finance which is now stirring the minds of the people in every section of the country. It is arousing the public thought and public conscience into vigorous, unresting action. It is also vitalizing the political elements, which enter into the field of discussion and general agitation, with new energy and more animated feeling. All well and good. Let the ball roll on.

TURKISH train robbers are a point or two ahead of the American article. They recently derailed an express train and held the passengers for a ransom of $40,000, and they got it. The money was advanced by the German Consul to Constantinople, but it is fair to persume that it will be repaid, with interest, by the Turkish government.

IN the contest between Flower's cash and Jones's whiskers which has been going on in New York for some time Cash is decidedly ahead and unless whiskers can brace up he will not be "in it" at the close of the fight.

LA MORT D'AMOUR.

When was it that love died? We were so fond,
So very fond a little while ago.
With leaping pulses and blood all aglow,
We dreamed about a fairer life beyond,

When we should dwell together as one heart,
And scarce could wait that happy time to come.
Now, side by side we sit, with lips quite dumb,
And feel ourselves a thousand miles apart.

How was it that love died? I do not know.
I only know that all its grace untold
Has faded into gray. I miss the gold
From our dull skies, but did not see it go.

Why should love die? We prized it, I am sure;
We thought of nothing else when it was ours;
We cherished it in smiling sunlit bowers:
It was our all; why could it not endure?

Alas! we know not how, or when, or why
This dear thing died. We only know it went,
And left us dull, cold, and indifferent—
We who found heaven in each other's sigh.

How pitiful it is, and yet how true,
That half the lovers in the world one day
Look questioning in each other's eyes this way,
And know love's gone forever, as we do!

Sometimes I can not help but think, dear heart,
As I look out o'er all the wide, sad earth,
And see love's flame gone out on many a hearth,
That those who would keep love must dwell apart.

THE WORK OF A SLUG.

BY DOUGLAS SLADER.

Dr. Dexter, a most respectable citizen of New York, a bachelor, but none the worse for that, had been keeping watch night at his club the night that 1890 died. Frozen slush lay thick on the ground and a gang of Italians were engaged in removing it from that eminently respectable street, West 42d, as he made his way back to the Percival. The pavement had been cleaned some hours earlier, leaving a layer of snow water. Then came frost, and it turned to a sheet of glass. As the jolly young doctor strode along—he was too Anglomaniac to wear rubbers, and though by no means drunk felt as if he had drunk well—he suddenly slipped and, falling on the back of his head, lay stunned.

The door of quite a handsome house opened and a well dressed man came out. He walked up to the body. The stunned man's coat collar was unbuttoned, showing a valuable but peculiarly shaped pearl—a perfect heart—in his tie.

"What, Jim, old fellow, is that you?" called out the last comer, and picking him up tenderly, carried him to the door from which he had emerged, waving off the help proffered by the Italians. He pulled out his latchkey, opened the door carefully, and lifted in the man addressed as Jim.

Once inside, between the street door and the glass door, there was a terrible change. The pretense friend pulled out his dark lantern and revealed, lying in a corner, a man killed by a blow from one of those short, flexible, loaded clubs, known as life preservers.

He was killed by a blow at the back of the ear. Not many minutes before, coming back from ushering in the new year at the Players', he had felt so flushed that he had left his overcoat open and his gloves off, revealing his magnificent diamonds, two in his shirt front and one on his little finger. A gentlemanly looking man had been waiting outside the Club. He followed the happy reveller, and, wearing rubbers, his footsteps made no sound as he shadowed his intended victim right up to his own front doorsteps.

Had the man turned, his pursuer—with a gentlemanly appearance and an unlit cigarette in his mouth—would have asked for a light. He did not, and from the time he took in opening the outer latch was evidently none too clear headed. As he stepped between the two doors the thug slipped in beside him without a sound. He closed the outer door behind him, never dreaming of looking if he were alone, and stooped to fumble at the inner latch.

The thug had anticipated how he would stand, and flashing the electric dark lantern which he held in the hollow of his left hand, struck him with the life preserver he held in his right a tremendous blow behind the ear which killed him outright. Then swiftly removing his watch and chain and the fatally magnificent diamonds from his shirt front and finger, he slipped a hand into his breast-pocket for the pocketbook. It held $400 or $500. He emptied it and threw it down, and with habitual provision for accidents picked up the latchkey.

Being ready for the emergency, fortune favored him.

No sooner was he outside the door than he saw Dr. Dexter fall and lie stunned. A flash of genius illuminated him. Pretending to be a friend he carried the doctor up to the house in which he had committed the murder and readmitted himself with the latchkey which he had so providentially taken. No one was likely to disturb him. It was between 2 and 3 in the morning. Gleaming in the stunned man's necktie was the glorious heart shaped pearl which excited his cupidity and argued its owner a man worth robbing. But he discovered as soon as he had the doctor inside that he had knocked the pearl out of the pin in the effort of carrying the heavy body up.

He was the king of the New York thugs, murderers with the appearance of gentlemen, who, on the strength of their appearance, follow wealthy looking victims into private places, even their houses, unsuspected and then, stunning or slaying them (it is a matter of indifference), rob them. He wanted some fresh form of excitement in his ghastly trade, and therefore he ran a slight risk of detection to fasten the guilt of the murder on the stranger so providentially stunned.

He saw at a glance that the doctor would not come to for hours. He had seen so many men stunned by the sandbag or the life preserver that he knew more about the period of recovery than most hospital surgeons.

First he pulled out the doctor's pocketbook, containing five $10 notes and about $20 in smaller denominations. These latter he put into the dead man's pocketbook and slipped both books into the doctor's pocket. Then he emptied the silver from both men's pockets and put some of it into one of the doctor's outside coat pockets. With it he thrust the dead man's watch and chain, carrying off the doctor's own, a good deal the more valuable of the two. The broken pin he did not touch. The king of the thugs had a soul above remnants. Then he seized the prostrate doctor by the throat and shook him by the collar till it gave way, then he flung him backward with all his might into the opposite corner from the corpse. He did not care if it killed him. Another life was nothing to him. Then he took out his life preserver and striking his dead victim, who had fallen on his back, a terrific blow on the forehead, tossed the weapon down carelessly between the two men.

His work was done. No one had observed the frequent flashes of that tiny electric dark lantern, which fitted into the hollow of his hand. He opened the door, walked coolly down the steps and up the street eastward until he was lost in the darkness. The policeman on the street was cold and had gone in somewhere to warm himself. Not a soul noticed him except the Italians. To them he said that he was going for a doctor. They could not understand him and were content that he did not ask them for the pearl which one of them had picked up, as it lay glistening, visible yards off, on the glare ice of the sidewalk, and of which they were to share the proceeds.

When the maid servant opened the inner door of the fatal house next morning, with a shriek of horror she ran to tell her mistress that there was a murdered man lying between the two doors, and another, who was dying, faintly calling for help.

The police were sent for and the two bodies taken to the police station, when the place had been carefully searched. The case against the doctor was only too clear. The watch thrust hurriedly into his coat pocket was the murdered man's; so was the pocketbook containing the $20. The landlady could identify these. His own pocketbook contained nothing. Plunder was the motive. Besides there were the marks of the struggle. His bruised neck, torn clothing, and the cut on the back of his head (which had stunned him when he fell in the street) showed how desperately the victim had struggled against the irresistible odds of the life preserver.

The doctor was committed, as soon as he should have sufficiently recovered to leave the hospital, for willful murder.

It was in vain that his club friends, when he communicated with them, protested that his position was such as to make a murder for robbery impossible. He must take his trial.

He had one good friend who was not a good man.

This friend, named O'Brien, persuaded him to employ a rascally lawyer, said to be of great ability, but better known as "a man with a pull."

Mr. O'Brien's sagacity proved itself. With the judge the "pull" might have been of no avail. With the police it was too great to be disregarded. For once they really gave him all the help in their power. Through them, much as they would have liked the credit of a conviction, he discovered that the deadly blow which struck the victim down from behind was not struck by the doctor. For the victim could not have hurled his assailant back and stunned him after receiving such a blow, and it stood to reason that a man who was so stunned as to be barely recovering five or six hours after the victim, from his appearance, must have been dead, could not have dealt such a blow while in that state. Then a minute surgical examination showed that there was nothing in the wall between the two doors which could have caused such a cut as that on the doctor's head, which had been made by a stone imbedded in the glare ice he had slipped upon, and further that it would have been next to impossible for him to have received a blow on that part of the head at all by falling against a vertical wall. A broken neck or a cut nearly on the top of the head would have replaced the cut at the back of the head.

But the crowning piece of evidence came from the arrest of an Italian who was endeavoring to dispose of a magnificent heart shaped pearl which the police accused him of stealing, but which he persisted, when the interpreter arrived, had dropped from the scarf pin of a gentleman who slipped and fell stunned in Forty-second street in the small hours of 1891, and was carried into his house by a friend. He offered to point out his home, and it proved to be the house in which the murder was committed. He described the man who fell. It tallied with the doctor. The lawyer was informed. The broken pin had, of course, been carefully saved. The pearl fitted exactly in the most unusually shaped setting, which had been hollowed or molded to fit the gem. The identity was beyond doubt.

The Italian thought the doctor was dead before he was carried into the house. So did his fellow dagoes when they were summoned.

After this, for a clever lawyer "with a pull," it was child's play to prove what must have happened and had actually happened.

The king of the thugs, so far as the public know, or will tell, still walks at large to follow some other wealthy victim into the dark death trap between the outer and inner street doors of his own house.

He may possibly have accomplices among club waiters to tell him when a lucky gambler carries off an unusually large amount of winnings from the card room of this or that high playing club.

He was in the court when the doctor was tried, and felt a cynical disappointment.

The latest English style of shaking hands, judging from the description, resembles the well known popular method of handling a hot potato.—[Binghamton Republican.

A man never knows what a shield it is to have "highly respectable" parents until he is caught in some scrape.

A PASSING FACE.

'Twas but a moment. Long enough to feel
The grateful presence of her quiet grace
And at her beauty's shrine a moment kneel
To mark the sweetness of her gentle face.

To catch a glance from out her downcast eyes,
A fleeting light of violet, more rare
Than all the colors of the summer skies,
That but a moment lingered fluttering there.

A moment. Then she vanished; yet to stay
Within my memory as some distant strain
Of music, rising slowly, dies away,
But lingers yet when all is still again;

Or as a dream that flits across the mind
When care is bound by all-forgetting sleep
Too soon will vanish, but yet leave behind
A gentle sweetness that the senses keep.

If fate had been but kinder. Who can tell
Our paths had been the same, and hand in hand
Together we had wandered o'er the fell
And crossed the border of the unknown land?

We met to meet no more. Upon the sea
Of life we pass like ships. A moment seen,
A signal shown, a shout thrown cheerily—
Then darkness, waves and distance stretch between.

A TRUE TALE.

Mr. Willoughby Arnold was a theatrical agent. He had lived at different times in New York, Boston, City of Mexico, Paris, Dublin, and Liverpool, but had gravitated like most geniuses and many lesser lights to the great center of the world—London. He was tall, rather thin, dark mustached and haired, wore always a dark brown velvet coat and light gray trousers, and had a chronic cough. He had the reputation of being sharp, but then sharpness is needed in almost all professions, perhaps most of all in that of a theatrical agent. For he has not only to live on his own wits, but also on the wits of others. And this Mr. Willoughby was quite an adept in doing.

He had been eight months in London, and to judge from the furniture and appointments of his office was already doing well. He was very exclusive and made it very difficult for people to gain access to him. Up four flights of stairs was his office, and when you got there you found a smiling clerk, to pass whom was well nigh impossible. When you did succeed in passing him the agent's cousin, Mr. Digby Arnold, had to be coaxed and bullied before you could pass from his little corner cupboard of a den into the photograph hung, flower scented inner sanctum of the agent himself. The visitor's progress was a good deal like that in the o'd fairy tales, where a lion lay at one turn in the path, and a dragon at another, and an ogre at the third, and so on, and your chances of passing the latter depended always on your giving the right word and correct salute to the first.

Still, there were plenty of people, and not all of the feminine gender either, who were willing to climb the stairs and wait at the outer doors in order to gain entrance at last to the holy of holies inside—the presence of Mr. Willoughby Arnold.

Finally there came one day a young lady, very neatly, tastefully dressed, and with every pretension to breeding, to the outer office and besieged the desk. Her business was politely requested of her. She named it. Engagement, she hoped. The smiling clerk, not a whit embarrassed by beauty, breeding, and fashion, refused the suggestion. Mr. Arnold's vacancies were absolutely full. He had no room for any one. Could not entertain any more applicants.

The young lady named a mutual friend, Miss Lawrence Max. No use; the smiling clerk distinctly though politely refused her admittance. Fortunately for her, Mr. Digby Arnold, passing through, saw her and was attracted.

"I think perhaps, Austin, my cousin, (he sometimes forgot whether he was a cousin or a brother, a little careless, this Digby) might find time to see this young lady."

Miss Lamont was highly grateful. She had given her name as Helen Lamont.

Austin opened a little wicket and Miss Lamont entered office number one. In a few moments she had completely subjugated Digby and was cosily seated in office number two. From where she sat she could hear Willoughby cough.

"Some one with a very bad cold," she prettily hazarded.

"My brother—Willoughby," responded Digby. "I am sure I can get him to see you. Any friend of Miss Lawrence Max would be at any time perfectly welcome, only—town is so crowded just now, and the stage so thoughtlessly besieged. You can have no idea how my poor brother is haunted. Really, only for this arrangement of offices he would not be able to attend to business at all. Will you wait a moment?"

"Certainly," said Miss Lamont.

She was a very pretty girl, so demure and neat and womanly. Charming for ingenue characters and well, even richly attired.

"A good premium," whispered Digby in the next room to Mr. Willoughby, seated at a long table strewn with letters, books, trifles of art and beauty, flowers, and photographs.

He held a white silk handkerchief to his face and wore the famous brown velvet coat.

"Ask it, anyway," said Digby. "I don't know anything about her ability, but that doesn't matter. Shall I show her in?"

Willoughby assented and, when Miss Lamont entered in her pretty, modest, beseeching way, dressed in soft gray with immaculate boots and gloves, a gleam of jewelry and a wave of perfume, and a knot of violets at her throat, he motioned her to a luxurious arm chair.

He still held his handkerchief to his face as he said, between coughs—

"Excuse me. I am a very great sufferer from a combination of complaints. You are looking for an engagement on the stage?"

Miss Lamont assented.

"I am left penniless. I had a talent that way. At least, I trust so. In amateur evenings——"

"A very different thing, I assure you. However, your looks will assist you. Penniless? I can hardly believe that."

"Well—a small annuity—yes, I have something, but it will not last forever, and in the meantime I must try my luck in a profession."

Mr. Arnold turned over his papers and cards with his left hand, while keeping the handkerchief to his face with his right.

"Ah—what can you do? Sing?"

Miss Lamont shook her head.

"There's a very nice part waiting to be filled up, but it requires two songs. That wouldn't do. Here is an ingenue part at Islington—old theater, but good pay. Will you read me something? I must know what you can do, you know."

Miss Lamont's courage did not desert her. A ragged Shakespeare lay on the table. Blushing, she took it up and declaimed Portia's speech. Mr. Willoughby Arnold, thoroughly interested and pleased, let his handkerchief fall in the middle. Miss Lamont almost screamed. Through her brain rushed this sentence:

"Remember, he can be identified anywhere by a triangular gash—most remarkable—directly under the nose."

"I beg your pardon," she exclaimed, letting the book fall, "I am a little nervous, I suppose. Do you think I shall do?"

Willoughby, who was now attacked by very intense coughing, signified his pleased surprise at her reading.

"You might do very well. I can make an appointment here with Arden, the manager—old John Arden—very nice old man—kind, and all that—any time you like."

Miss Lamont was of course very grateful.

"Fee, please," said Mr. Willoughby, as she turned to go.

"Oh, I didn't know. How much?"

"A guinea," replied Mr. Digby, who appeared at the door to escort her out to office number two, and thence to office number one. And the premium, Willoughby?"

"Premium?" said Miss Lamont, looking from the one to the other.

"Of course. We ask a premium of 10 guineas on every appointment made. You see we have to do this, so many unconscientious people going round."

"Then, if I pay the premium you are sure to get the manager here to meet me—Mr. Arden?"

"Oh, certain!" replied the suffering Willoughby.

"Well, if you don't mind," said Miss Helen Lamont, smilingly opening her purse, "I'll just pay the fee this morning, and see you again about the premium. I can easily come in again."

With that she departed, and she took a strange direction for so pretty a young lady, for she went straight to Scotland Yard.

"I have found him," said she. "I tried eleven theatrical agents, and he was the eleventh. There can be no mistake. He has a cough and a gash under his nose."

Next day about 4 o'clock Mr. Willoughby Arnold, of Garrick street, alias a good many other people, and a notorious forger and embezzler, was quietly waited upon by an arm of the law. The cough was partly natural and partly assumed, and the flat in Garrick street was soon shorn of two of its occupants.

"To think," reflected Austin, the smiling clerk, "that that pretty girl was only a detective, after all!"

And a capital business Miss Lamont has found it, although occasionally trying. She has been uniformly successful, however, and is shortly to issue a volume containing her experience.

Advice to Lady Gardeners.

Now plant schemes for summer travel. Take in your husband's loose change and cut back his superfluous expenses. Cultivate hectic flushes and sick spells, showing the need of fresh air and of transplanting to the seaside. Prepare for summer dresses and get ready your guide books. Saratoga should be brought out and overhauled. Water the family doctor with generous fees and cultivate his ideas that the European travel treatment would best suit your case. Begin to mulch your husband with kindness and flattery. It may encourage the growth of his liberality. When he is ripe for picking he should have more fondling and be put into the sunlight of warm affection. This should be kept up until he begins to drop big leaves from his checkbook. When you have got all you can, turn him out of the pot and throw him into a corner to dry off.—[Philadelphia Times.

Just the Same.

The other day a Virginia negro dug up a shell at Malvern Hill which had been buried since 1862; but when he put it to roast in a fire so as to get at the kernel it went off and killed a plow horse and left the darkey only one leg to go on for the rest of his life. Those old shells were loaded for b'ar.

A Misunderstanding.

Mudge—The misunderstanding was all on my side. I understood that Vickars was a man who could be kicked with impunity.—[Indianapolis Journal.

THE MAN IN THE MOON.

The man in the moon looked down, looked down,
As he went sailing over town,
And spied a snug retreat and dark,
Beneath a yew tree in a park,
O dear!
Why did he smile so broad and queer?

There was a bench beneath the tree,
And on it sat not one nor three,
And yet he peered the branches through
To be quite sure that there were two.
Well, well,
Such tales as the Man in the Moon could tell!

He sent a silver shaft of light
Straight through the vague and lying night;
It flashed athwart two eyes upturned,
And two with love and youth that burned—
Alack!
And these were blue and those were black.

And then the Man in the Moon sailed past
Across the heavens wild and vast;
And though he smiled, he did not look
Again into that leafy nook.
Oh, oh,
He sees so much that's queer, you know!

DRACK, THE SPRITE.

TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH.

In the last century there lived in the little town of Gaillac a young merchant named Michael, who, finding himself at the age to marry, set about seeking a wife. Provided she was gentle, pious, rich, pretty, and of good family, it was of little importance as to the rest, for Michael knew that it was necessary to be modest in one's desires. Unhappily, he did not see a person in Gaillac who appeared worthy of his choice. All the young girls there had known defects, without speaking of those that were unknown.

Finally, he was told of a demoiselle of Lavaur dowered with virtues unnumbered and 20,000 crowns. This last sum was exactly the amount Michael needed to establish himself, so he immediately fell deeply in love with the young lady of Lavaur. He was introduced to the family, who found him very agreeable, and welcomed him favorably. But the young heiress had several suitors between whom she hesitated. After some preliminaries, it was decided that they should all meet at an evening's sociable, and, being compared, the relatives of the young lady should make a choice.

On the day assigned Michael left Gaillac for Lavaur. He had put into his portmanteau what was the most suitable; an apple green coat, a pigeon throat purple vest, black velvet trousers, hose of silk with silver facings, and buckled shoes, beside powder and satin ribbon for his queue. His horse was covered by a long netting to protect him from the flies, and the bridle was ornamented with tufts of silk, while the saddle was of hogskin. Moreover, the prudent traveler had not omitted putting pistols into his holsters, where also was slipped in a small flagon of brandy and a few slices of pistachio nut cake.

In reality, Michael was so anxious about the arranged test that he felt at each instant his courage oozing away. Hence, perceiving afar the church of Lavaur, he came to a sudden pause. He first reined in his steed, then put his foot upon the ground, and in order to reflect upon what he should say during the evening of trial entered a little grove, where he seated himself upon the turf.

He had drawn from their place, for the sake of companionship, the pistachio nut cake and the flask, placing them between his knees so that, without thinking, he might accompany his reflections by swallows of liquor and mouthfuls of food. These distractions resulted in reassuring him and giving him confidence. He arrived at the point of believing himself possessed of all the graces of wit and of virtue, and he was infallibly assured of victory.

So, as the sun disappeared behind the horizon, he rose to continue his journey, when a noise was heard behind him in the thicket. It was as of a multitude of little feet striking the sod in cadence to the sound of drum and cymbals. Michael, astonished, turned about, and by the light of the first stars perceived a troop of earth men led by their king, Tambourinet; the buffoon of these little people, Goblin Drack, came last, turning hand springs and uttering cries like a jackdaw.

The faries surrounded the traveler with a thousand testimonials of friendship and good wishes. Michael, who had drank too much not to be brave, welcomed them like old acquaintances, and seeing that their little eyes were fixed upon his cake, broke it out to them as to so many sparrows.

Despite their great numbers each had a bit, save Drack, who arrived when all was ended.

Tambourinet wished now to know what was the quality of this brandy, and the flask was passed from hand to hand until it reached the jester, who found it empty, and threw it away.

"This is just, my little man," he said to the goblin, "for those who arrive too late can expect but disappointment."

"I will give you something so that you will always remember your words," cried Drack in a rage.

"And what is that?" inquired the traveler ironically. "Do you think yourself big enough to fight with me?"

Drack disappeared without replying, and Michael remounted his horse after taking leave of Tambourinet.

He had not proceeded a hundred paces when the saddle turned and threw him into the dust. He rose, slightly stunned, rebuckled the girth, and again mounted his horse; but a little farther along, as he was passing a bridge, the right stirrup suddenly broke, and he found himself seated in the middle of the way. He started forward in very bad humor, and had a third fall upon the stones of the road, and there found a resting place. Fearing that if he persisted he should be unable to present himself to the family of his intended, he decided to ride his horse bareback and carry the saddle upon his shoulder. He thus made his entrance into Lavaur amid the laughter of the people, who were taking tea before their doors.

"Laugh, laugh, you double idiots!" murmured Michael. "It does not appear to me such a remarkable thing that a man should carry his saddle when it will not carry him."

At last he reached the hotel, where he alighted and demanded a chamber in which to remove his traveling garments. He opened his valise with care and laid out upon the bed the articles of his toilet in the order of their importance.

Thinking first of his hair, he considered whether it should be powdered to a blonde or like hoar frost. The last appeared to him most tender, so he took the puff ball of swan's down and commenced operations upon the right hand side; but when he had finished it appeared as if an invisible hand had powdered the other side of the head a blonde in a manner to make it part yellow and part white, like an orange half peeled.

Michael, astonished, hastened to mix the powders with the comb, and being in too great a hurry to comprehend the reason—for thought demanded much leisure with him—he extended his hand toward the spool on which the satin ribbon destined for his queue was wound. The spool escaped his grasp and fell to the floor. Michael ran to pick it up, but it seemed to fly before him. Twenty times he stooped to seize it, and twenty times it eluded his impatient hands. One would say it was a kitten playing with a bone. Finally he lost patience, and seeing that the evening was advanced, he resigned himself to wear his old ribbon, and made all possible speed to put on his morocco shoes.

He first buckled the right shoe, then the left, and his eye, arrested by the latter, led him to admire the elegance of the member, which had nothing plebeian in it, when he perceived that the first buckle bent nearly to the floor. He occupied himself in placing it better. A brief interval, and the second shoe needed attention. Michael had hardly set this right than the other demanded new care. He persisted thus for a whole hour without being able to have both equal in adjustment.

Furious, he put on again his traveling shoes to end it, and then reached for his velvet knee breeches; but now another marvelous thing! At the moment he approached the bed the breeches launched themselves from it, and began to circulate about the chamber with a thousand provoking gambols.

Michael, petrified, remained for a moment open mouthed, with arms extended, contemplating with bewildered eyes this strange scene. But I leave you to think what you may when he saw his vest, his coat, his hat join the breeches, taking their respective places and forming an imitation of himself, parodying his attitudes.

Pale and terrified he rushed toward the window, but at this moment perceived, under the three cornered hat, the grinning face of Master Drack, who made mocking gestures to him.

Michael uttered a cry.

"Ah, miserable jester, it is you, then!" he exclaimed. "Upon my soul I will make you repent of your insolence if you do not return to me my clothes immediately!"

At these words he sprang upon the apparition, but Drack, with a retrograde movement, was at the other end of the chamber. The young man, whom anger and impatience made beside himself, precipitated himself anew upon the goblin, but this time he passed between his legs and out upon the staircase.

Michael, in a rage, pursued him; he climbed to the fourth story, reached the garret, where Drack turned himself like a clothes horse until he took the fancy to escape by a dormer window. Michael, exasperated, took the same road. The malicious goblin promenaded from roof to roof, trailing the velvet breeches, the vest, the coat, in all the gutters, to the great despair of Michael. At last, after a peregrination of several hours, traversing these mountains of the cats and swallows, Drack climbed a high chimney, at the base of which his adversary was obliged to pause.

He bent toward the breathless and discouraged young man.

"You see, my pretty friend," said he laughing, "you have forced me to spread your ball dress upon the moss of the roofs; but, happily, what I see here under the warm, white smoke will remedy all that."

As he spoke, Drack agitated the velvet breeches above the pipe of the chimney.

"What are you doing, you fool?" cried the young man.

"I will send your clothes to the bleacher," cried the goblin.

And the coat, the vest, and the hat followed the breeches into the smoky abyss.

The young gallant seated himself upon the roof with a groan of despair, but he rose almost immediately.

"Very well," said he with resolution, "I will go to the ball in my traveling attire."

A bell sounded from a neighboring clock. It was midnight. Michael counted the 12 strokes and could not restrain a cry. This was the hour appointed by the relatives to make known among the suitors present the one which the young lady preferred.

"Unhappy one that I am!" he exclaimed. "When I shall now have arrived all will be over. The guests and the parents will mock at me!"

"And that will be just, my great man," replied Drack with a biting sneer; "for you said to me, 'To those who arrive too late nothing remains but regrets.' Being thus served, I hope the lesson will prevent you at another time from laughing at the weak. And remember henceforth that the smallest are the most revengeful."

"The Princess of Wales," said Ward McAllister the other day, "is the best dressed woman in the world. I don't believe that she ever wears the same dress twice, and she has her hair dressed in Paris every day. She wears false hair, you know, and she sends her wigs over to Paris daily. While one wig is going across the channel to France to be dressed the other is coming to London."

Snow Shoe Pencilings.

Hon. Jno. H. Orvis, accompanied by 'Squire R. J. Hayns, spent several days on Pine Run on a fishing excursion last week. The gentlemen caught themselves rich, of course their names being enrolled among the Champion fishers.

Mr. J. Mitchell spent Sunday at the home of his parents, near State College.

We offer our sympathy to the family of Mr. Mitchell Leathers, of this place, who on Monday evening received the sad news of their oldest son's drowning at Howard. This son had just reached manhood. Was a most worthy and upright young man and was the especial pride of his parents. Had been attending school at Howard. The news of his tragic death was a great shock to this entire community where he was a general favorite.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Howell, of Atchison, Kan., who for the past week have been the guests of their aunt, Mrs. M. C. Nolan, the pleasant hostess of the ever popular Mountain House, departed on Tuesday morning's train for their beautiful and palatial western home. Mrs. Howell is a general favorite wherever she is known; the attraction of every circle in which she moves.

Mr. R. C. Crider, one of Snow Shoe's promising young men, spent part of Decoration Day in Bellefonte.

Mrs. R. J. Hayns was on Monday in the city of the "Beautiful Fountain," among her numerous friends.

Mrs. M. C. Nolan spent Monday in Williamsport shopping.

R. J. Hayns, Jr., was out at Cataract on official business. Some parties whom he interviewed, we have no doubt, would rather have seen anyone else than our smiling 'cheap' about that time. Ask them.

Mr. James Marsteller, Supt. of Lehigh Valley Company's works here, was in Bellefonte on Monday.

Mr. Logan, one of Snow Shoe's obliging engineers, was in Tyrone and Bellefonte on May 30th.

Mrs. Martin Reese returned from a pleasant visit to her parents in Howard Saturday evening.

Rev. W O. Wright will preach in the Presbyterian church of this place on Sunday, June 17th. Everybody cordially invited.

Mr. Austin returned to Snow Shoe after an absence of nearly two weeks, on Tuesday.

Mr. C. Weaver, one of Bellefonte's most successful insurance men, was in our little city of the "Shoe" on Thursday.

Mr. Boyde Glenn's familiar face was seen on our streets on Tuesday, he having driven the entire distance from Altoona. Dr. Glenn, his father, who a short time ago met with such a painful accident, is getting along nicely.

Miss Stella D. Nolan, one of Snow Shoe's fair daughters, who is one of the members of the Junior Class at Lutherville Seminary, was awarded the "Gold Prize" in Chemistry this year. This speaks volumes for Miss Stella's talents and the improvement of them. We wish her many more honors ere she graduates next year.

FIDELES.

At this season of the year when malaria lurks in the air, and bad colds not an unfrequent visitor, we long for a quick and effective remedy. There is scarcely a home without a sufferer from some of the many ills the flesh is heir to. A stimulant is after the intermediator. It is quick and effective. It brings relief and saves doctors bills. We can reccommend Mr. Max Klein for anything in the liquor line. His silver age Rye at $1.50 per quart is the best whiskey in the market. He will sell any Pennsylvania Rye Whiskey six years old, at 1.00 for each quart or six for $5.00. Send for his price list and catalogue and mention this paper. Address MAX KLEIN,

Waller Declines to Retire.

HARRISBURG, June 4—Z. X. Snyder has made a formal application to Dr. Waller for the office of State Superintendent of Public Instruction. He was promptly informed, after an amicable conference, that Dr. Waller considered the place as indubitable his, and it was settled that the matter should be referred to the court for proper adjudication. The time of the trial has not yet been set.

THE CHICAGO SPECIAL.

NEW TRAIN TO THE WEST VIA PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.

In order to increase its present superb facilities between New York and Chicago, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will, on June 7th, place in service an additional fast express train between these points. The new train will be known as the "Chicago Special." It will be composed of two Pullman Vestibule Sleeping Cars, one Combination Smoking Car, two Pennsylvania Railroad Standard Coaches, and a Dining Car. The entire equipment will run through to Chicago, except the dining car, which will be dropped after supper at Altoona. Another dining car for the service of breakfast and dinner will, however, be attached to the train at Alliance.

The "Chicago Special" will leave New York every day at 4.00 p. m., Philadelphia 6.25 p. m., and stopping at Harrisburg, Altoona, Pittsburgh, and principal points on the Fort Wayne route, arrive in Chicago 5.15 p. m. the next day.

The east-bound counterpart of this train will be known as the "Keystone Express." It will leave Chicago via the Fort Wayne route at 10.45 a. m. every day, and arrive in Philadelphia 11.25 a. m., and New York 2 p. m. It will be equipped in every respect as the west-bound train, and will carry a dining car from Chicago to Alliance, and Altoona to New York.

These trains will be equipped with the best grade of new cars, they will run on a fast schedule, and the hours of departure and arrival at prominent centres commend them at once to the favorable consideration of travelers.

RELIGIOUS NOTES.

Dr. Talmage's new tabernacle in Brooklyn will hold twice as many persons as the old tabernacle.

The German Reformed Church in the United States reports 1,556 congregations and 203,852 members.

After long opposition on the part of the vestry, the electric light has finally been introduced into old Trinity Church at New York.

The Universities' mission in Central Africa, which now has 2,000 adherents, is rejoicing in the ordination of its first native priest.

It is reported that the attitude of the Vatican toward the Italian government has improved since the downfall of the Crispi ministry.

Rev. Dr. Sabato Morais celebrated at his home in Philadelphia recently the completion of 40 years of ministerial service with the orthodox Portuguese Congregation Mickwe Israel.

A foreign missionary journal says: "In Africa the number of missionaries exceeds 500, and the number of converts 400,000, increasing by about 25,000 a year. During the past five years Africa has furnished more than 200 martyrs.

A new Anglican cathedral has been consecrated in Melbourne, Australia. A Congregational paper says that its completion is a matter of congratulation "not alone to the members of the Anglican Church, but to all citizens of Melbourne and indeed to the whole colony."

By the will of the late Oliver Hoyt, of Stamford, Conn., nearly $100,000 is left to benevolent societies. The Methodist Missionary Society receives $20,000, Wesleyan University, $25,000; Cornell College of Iowa, 10,000; New York East Conference, $5,000, and the American Bible Society, $10,000.

The entire clergy of Dalmatia have petitioned the pope to permit all the Slavonic priests of the Balkans to celebrate mass in their native language. The petition sets forth that the Slavonic people, on account of their antipathy to the mass in the Latin language, go over to the Greek orthodox churches.

The next event of international importance in the Christian Endeavor movement will be the annual convention at Minneapolis, July 9th to 12th. A hall that seats 10,000 has been provided, and the ablest speakers from all denominations will be heard. Reduced rates on all railroads and at hotels will be provided.

The Louisiana Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South reports 231 church edifices, valued at $430,000, and 58 parsonages, valued at $50,114. They also report 90 local preachers, with 20,025 white and 8 colored members; 216 Sunday schools, with 1,299 teachers and 8,499 scholars. The amount raised for missions was $6,642.

An English Methodist paper says that the most brilliant commemoration of the centenary of John Wesley's death was held at old St. Giles Church in Edinburg. There gathered in that cathedral, seven centuries old, the representatives of the historic Presbyterian churches, of the town council, and the venerable university, in testimony of the benefit which the Evangelical revival has conferred on the nation.

There is probably no ecclesiastical organization in America that has grown as rapidly as has the Missouri Synod of the Lutheran Church. Begun less than 40 years ago in Perry county, Mo., by a few German pastors who had left Saxony for conscience sake, it now has spread from ocean to ocean and from Canada to Mexico. According to the statistical year book just published, the synod now numbers 1,140 pastors, 1,631 organized congregations, 548 mission points, 305,350 confirmed and communicant members.

It is said that the Catholics of Brazil have been very much opposed to the provision of the constitution of the republic which deprives priests and employees of the church of the right to vote, and also debars priests from becoming members of Congress. It is understood that the reason this provision was inserted was that the officers of the church really held their allegiance to their spiritual superiors as stronger than their allegiance to the State, and, therefore, are not such true citizens of the republic as would entitle them to a voice in its government. This provision, however, has been somewhat modified.

It may not be generally known, notes the Congregationalist, that the American committee on the revision of the bible still keeps up its organization and holds occasional meetings. By the terms of agreement with the English university presses the committee can not issue an authorized American edition of the revised bible till 14 years after the publication of the English edition. But 10 years have already passed, and the New Testament Company can easily finish its preparation for an American edition before 1895. It is proposed to incorporate the American appendix into the text, to furnish chapter headings taken from the words of the text, and the references to quotations from the old testament in the new. Perhaps also the committee will select parallel passages and make suggestions of other changes for future use.

Experiments with strawberries indicate that pollen bearing is an exhaustive process, and that larger yields of fruit, as a rule, may be expected from those varieties which produce pollen so sparingly that a small proportion of other varieties producing pollen abundantly must be planted with them in order to insure a full crop.

The decree of the khedive of Egypt prohibiting the importation into that country of tobacco from Turkish, Greek, and French ports, while allowing it to be brought in from England, America, Austria, Italy, and elsewhere, is a cause of fresh unpleasantness between England and France. The three countries whose tobacco is prohibited are preparing a joint protest on the subject.

To th M mory of Hartranft.

NORRISTOWN, June 7.—The National Guard of Pennsylvania paid a tribute to the memory of Major General John F. Hartranft yesterday, when a splendid granite obelisk was unveiled over the dead warrior's tomb in Montgomery cemetry here in the presence of 5,000 troops and Grand Army men, and with eloquent eulogies from Governor Pattison, ex-Governor Beaver, General George R. Snowden and ex-Adjutant General James W. Latta. The military display was a memorable event in the history of Norristown, and the services at the grave were soldier-like in their simplicity and impressive in their earnestness and fervor.

Norristown turned out in gala array for the occasion; nearly every house was decorated with the national colors and all business was suspended. Mrs. Hartranft and her three children were interested spectators of the pageant in honor of her warrior husband and she entertained a large number of the general officers at her residence on Main street after the ceremonies.

Was the Dog Mad?

On Saturday a large white dog ran into Shroyer's carpet store, biting and snapping at everything that was in its way. Of course every person in the room climbed up to the ceiling and gave the dog the run of the room. The animal went into the office apartment and lay down and it was only after considerable hard prodding with long poles that it was routed. Finally it made a bee line for the door, scattering a good sized crowd of men and boys who had gathered to see the fun, and one out on the street, ran toward Bishop street for all it was worth. Some believed the dog mad while others thought it hardly possible. Mad or not mad, the dog should have been killed right there; an animal of that kind has no business abroad when he shows the least tendency toward madness.

Across the Deep, to the Far West,

On steamboats, cars and stage-coaches. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is carried as the most important item in the materia medica of the traveling public. It deprives vitiated, brackish water of its hurtful propertirs and execrable flaver, counteracts the pernicious effect upon the stomach of bad or indigestible food, remedies cramps, heartburn and wind upon the stomach. It is a fine defense against malarial disorders, nullifies the effect of excessive heat cold and damp, relieves sick-headache, and is an incomparable cure for costiveness and billiousness. The fatigue of travel often tells most disastrously upon invalids and convalescents, occasionally to such an extent as to jeopardize life. Person in feeble health, apprehensive of bad effect from travel, will, if provided with the Bitters, be far less likely to have their fears realized.

Wild Cat Title

Wonder how many of our readers know what a "wild cat" or paper title is? Of course, to the majority of those who hold them an explanation would be superfluous but for the instruction of the 'innocent few' we will say that a "wild cat" title is a title that exists simply on paper; a deed calling for a tract of land that is not in existence; or, in other words, calling for land which is owned by some one else who has a good, clear and undisputed title to it, while the "wild cat" title has no foundation nor proof to back it.

It may seem strange that such titles are in existence but is nevertheless true that they are numerous, and that in Centre county. They are to be found by the hundreds. In possession of persons who know their worthlessness, and who have them to sell to parties who do not know their value; they are to be found in the hands of parties who think them genuine and who are repeatedly trying to locate their land; always, however, without success; then they are to be found in the commissioner's and treasurer's offices, stacked away by the hundreds, and kept for no other purpose than speculation. A number of men have grown rich dealing in such spurious paper while more than one man has purchased the same to his sorrow. So long as they exist they will be circulated, and the only way to put them out of existence is to have a special survey of the entire country made and only good titles recorded.

A Good Offer.

Mr. George Rodgers, of this place, has received an offer of a 140 acre farm, situated on the Indianapolis and Vincennes railroad, 55 miles from Indianapolis, in exchange for his patent hydrant right for several western states. The farm offered is all under cultivation; there is on it a good six-room house, barn and other outbuildings. A good apple orchard and a spring of running water. The farm is entirely enclosed with good wire fence.

The parties offering the exchange proposes establishing a large plant to manufacture the hydrants for the western states. This will eventually bring the hydrants, as well as other products they intend manufacturing under the Rodgers' patent, into public notice and no doubt lead to the sale of other territory in the west and south.

Died in Philadelphia.

Hon. John Walls, of Lewisburg, father of the late Dr. Walls, of this city, died yesterday in the University hospital, Philadelphia, in his 91st year. About three weeks ago he had an operation performed for a cancer located on his face. When he was 78 years old he was afflicted with a cancer in the right arm and the arm was amputated. He then learned to write with his left hand. The deceased was the father-in law of Judge Bucher, of Lewisburg; he was an associate judge, for a while, of Union county, and served a term in the State Senate.

Assembly Next Friday.

The children composing Miss Bishops, younger dancing class held their last rehearsal last Saturday afternoon. They will hold their assembly next Friday afternoon at 1.39 o'clock. The Stopper & Fisk famous orchestra will be present to furnish music for the occasion, which promises to be a very pleasant affair.

His Shouder Dislocated.

Orris McCormick, W. K. Alexander's tenant farmer, residing near town, took a hand in a game of base ball played by our home club on Monday evening and while running from first to second base fell and dislocated his shoulder. One of the bystanders volunteered to accompany him to Spigelmyer's store, where he waited patiently until the services of a doctor were procured. Dr. C. S. Musser, of Aaronsburg, was called, who assisted by his visitor, Dr. Tobin, a popular physician of Stormstown, reset the disjointed bone, an operation which Mr. McCormick stood heroically, although suffering intense pain. The accident will deprive him of the use of his left arm for the next weeks.—Millheim Journal.

Sentenced for Carrying a Revolver

At Williamsport Judge Mayer, who is holding court for Judge Metzger, sentenced a fellow to the penitentiary for carrying a revolver on his person. The individual was considerably surprised, but the law forbids the carrying of concealed weapons. He will know better when he comes out of prison.

A. W. Strange, Esp., Lynchburg, Va., writes. "I use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup regularly for a tickling cough at night. It gives relief and puts me to sleep. It is much used here." Paice 25 cents.

Adam might have been the "goodliest man of men since born" but it doesn't appear that he ever did any especial good for his family. What a blessing he might have left behind, if he could have made Salvation Oil and kill pain.

Right, You Are.

The Ledger acknowledges the receipt of of an invitation to a grand fire, military and civic celebration on of the 4th of July at Bellefonte. As Philipsburg is not making any demonstration on Independence Day this year our citizens should turn out and help the Bellefonters, who are evidently preparing to cut it fat.—Philipsburg "Ledger."

THE Knights of Reciprocity seems to have just met the wishes of a good many people, judging from the extremely rapid growth of the organization.

MEETING IN PHILADELPHIA.

PHILADELPHIA, June 5.—The general synod of the Reformed church in the Unitde States convened in special session yesterday evening in the First Reformed church, corner of Tenth and Wallace street of which Rev. John H. Sechler is the pastor. This meeting of the synod was called to act on the final report of the joint commission appointed to take into consideration the question of Union with the Reformed church in North America. The president of the general synod, Rev. J. H. A. Bomberger, D. D., L. L. D., having died since the meeting of the synod at Lebanon, Pa., in 1890, Rev. J. Sangler Keiffer, D. D., the first vice president, preached the opening sermon from the text in Ephesians iv: 14—"There is one body and one spirit." The theme of the sermon was unity and was presented in Dr. Kieffer's mastery and eloquent style. Though the weather was inclement the large auditorium was well filled with a large and intelligent audience of God's people, whose hearts beat in unison for church union, for an opportunity for extended church work, and a wider field of usefulness in the Master's kindom. At the close of the religious services Dr. H. J. Rentenik, of Cleveland, O., announced a German hymn, which was sung with a will. Dr. I. H. Reiter, the state clerk, called the roll, when all fears of a quorm were dispelled, and it was found that thirty-seven classes were represented on the floor of the synod. After the call for this special meeting was read, the synod adjourned to meet Friday morning at 930 o'clock, by singing the long metre doxology and the appropriate benediction by the president, Dr. Kieffer.

There is considerable speculation on the part of the members of synod as to the outcome or result of the meeting. The general synod of the Reformed church in North America is in session at Asbury Park, N. J., and that synod will, as a compliment, take up this morning the question of union, but as there is considerable unrest in that body on the question of union, the result may be adverse to a union of the two churches.

Though there are many faces absent who were present one year ago at Lebanon, yet many places are filled by alternates, who are just as earnest on the question of union as those who voted in the affirmative last year. Some of the giants have fallen asleep—others have been detained, but looking over the synod we see doctors of divinity, professors of theology, ministers of the Word and laymen on whose countenances are written determination, wisdom, and forethought, which will show themselves at the proper time in a decisive way, and which will, we hope, be for the best interests of the churches of the reformation of the sixteenth century.

How Not To Do It.

Sometimes one can learn as much by other people's failures as by studying the successes of their more brilliant brothers. Thus much by way of preface or apology for Johnny's composition, made public in the San Francisco Examiner:

Gees hisses, but ducks quacks, and wen Franky, that's the baby, is pain-fle on his lap he hollers, but the lion roars like dissanthunder and makes the welkon wring! Uncle Ned, which has been in Injy, and every where he says one nite a lion came out of the woods and went to his correl his cattle. Uncle Ned he got up and looked in the correl thru a crack, the lion shode his teeth, and Uncle Ned sed, "The iddiot thinks I am a dentist, put I haven't no time for to tend to him. He sends for the lion tamer to quell him with his I."

Medical Value of Wines.

As a general rule the use of wine is not necessary for young persons in good health, breathing country air and not exposed to overwork. As, however, life advances and the circulation becomes languid, natural red wine used in moderation, becomes an essential article and in many cases absolutely necessary, but it must be the pure product of the grapes. And even in the Eastern States the physician meets large numbers of town people, especially women, who cannot digest the food and drinks suited to out-door laboring people. In such cases they resort to the beverage of tea which gives rise to a distressing dyspepsia. The wines produced in New Jersey, especially the Burgundy and the Port Grape Wines from Alfred Speer's Vineyards, at Passaic, are the more reliable and the most sought after by physicians and those who have traveled abroad and know what wines are.

ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J.

DEAR SIR:—I have used your Socialite Claret and your Port Wine in my practice with great satisfaction

Very truly yours,
WM. R. CHILDS.

Will Come to Bellefonte.

The citizens of Bellefonte, through the fire, military and civic organizations of the town, are making great preparations for celebrating the 4th of July. A neat invitation has been received at this office announcing the preliminary preparations for the event. Entertainment for all visiting organizations will be furnished on that day. The rescue H. L. Co., if they go away on that day, will probably go to Bellefonte.—Curwensville Review.

Demorest's Magazine.

"Can the character be read by the handwriting?" Most assuredly it can. Everyone can remember being influenced favorably or unfavorably by the penmanship of some unknown person, and has been astonished to find how true the conclusions were; and some of the world's foremost thinkers have maintained that the handwriting furnishes a more exact key to the character than the head, face, or form. Character-reading from handwriting is a fascinating study; and if you wish to learn all about it you must read the excellent and profusely illustrated article. "How to Read Character by Handwriting," by Prof. Nelson Thorpe, published in the July number of Demorest's Family Magazine, and you will be still more interested in the subject. In the same number is a splendid article on "Chili," which is particularly apropos at present; "Foes Afield Plants Poisonous to the Stomach" is quite as seasonable, and everyone can recognize the plants from the accurate illustrations; in "Summer Outdoor Games; Lawn Tennis, Badminton, Colors," they are so clearly described and illustrated that the veriest novice can learn how to play them without other instruction; and the amateur china-painter may rival the professional by following the directions given in "The Use of Matt Colors." Besides, there are stories and poems, and over 200 illustrations, including a superb watercolor, a French costume study under the Empire, and the numerous departments are full to overflowing with valuable matter. Briefly, this number fully maintains the justly earned prestige of being the Model Family Magazine, and it is published for $2 per year by W JENNINGS DEMOREST, 15 East 14th St., New York.

How To Hatch Them.

Jacob Fritz, residing at 624 West Third street, Williamsport, has solved the problem of how to hatch out ducks without mother duck or hen to do the setting. The Gazette and Bulletin says: "He had a hen sitting on a dozen duck eggs, but for some reason not explained by the old cluck, she deserted her nest about five days previous to the time in which it was expected that she would bring out a brood of little quackers. Jake had read somewhere, that, by placing the eggs between a pair of feather pillows in a warm place, the work of incubation would go on as usual, and he made up his mind to give it a trial. The eggs were carefully placed as directed, between the pillows, and put in the garret where they could have the benefit of the heat from the sun, and after five days, during which time they were not disturbed, eleven of the twelve eggs, each produced a lively little duck, and Jake is exceedingly happy over the result. The only thing that troubles him, however, is to know whether the hen or the pillows is entitled to the maternity of the little family."

Happily Wedded

On Thursday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, a small gathering of friends and acquaintances were gathered in the parlors of Senator P. Gray Meek's residence, on High street to witness the marriage of Mr. Samuel Sharer, a highly respected and influential citizen of Albany, Illinois, and Miss Sophia E. Young, of Ferguson township, this county. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Ed. Everett Hoshour, of the Lutheran church. The newly married couple drove to Zion where they will visit Mr. Sharer's friends a couple weeks ere they journey to their future home in the far west. May happiness attend them.

Wallace's Luck.

Ex-Senator William A. Wallace was in Bellefonte on Thursday transacting business. The sharp lawyer from Clearfield looked better than he has for some time and he will no doubt be good for a couple score of years yet. Mr. Wallace has just negotiated a lease to the Berwind-White company, of Philadelphia, of a large body of coal lands, the royalty of which will go very far toward a liquidation of his debts. He is also been successful in getting the Pennsylvania Railroad company to construct branch lines to his coal lands, which will enable him to utilize the properties for the benefit of his creditors.

ABOUT SPRING FEVER.

Who hasn't suffered from this disease? We call disease advisedly, for such it is. It is a general relaxation of the system that makes the victim averse to exertion. Unless the constitution is keyed up when these symptoms appear, some acute malady attacks the most vulnerable point and life is endangered. Good stimulant promptly and properly used restores tones up the weak spots. Leading physicians of the land invariably recommend the use of Pure Rye Whiskey in such cases. Max Klein's "Silver Age" and "Duquesne" Rye Whiskies are sold under a sworn guarantee of purity so that the consumer takes no risk—"Silver Age" at $1.50 and "Duquesne" at $1.25 per full quart bottle. Mr. Klein also keeps the largest and choicest stock of Brandies, Wines, etc., in Pennsylvania. Goods are sent express everywhere. Write for Catalogue and Price List (mentioning this paper) to Max Klein 82 Federal street, Allegheny City.

An Italian Shot.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., June 3.—This morning Mastreni Somi, an Italian, was found in an unconscious condition in a shedding near the stone quarries at Betzwood, near here, with a bullet hole in his groin. He was a watchman at the quarries and was probably murdered by some of his fellow countrymen, who were jealous of the position he held. He died while being taken to the hospital.

How a Brakeman Scared a Horse.

Eugene McCann, a Bald Eagle Valley freight brakeman, was severely injured yesterday, by the explosion of one of the fulminating caps used by trainmen as signals. Brakman McCann was a flagman, and his train was at a standstill waiting for another train to pass, when he saw an old horse grazing near the caboose, and thought he would have some fun. He placed the cap on the rail in the rear of the caboose and then struck it with the end of a pole which was kept in the car. The cap exploded and pieces of it struck him on the eye, one of them cutting a gash which required several stitches to close. Another piece flew past his head and knocked his hat off, but fortunately did not strike him in the face. The young man was taken to Dr. Watson's office, where his wounds were dressed, and he was afterwards sent to his home in Tyrone.—L. H. Express.

It Suits Bellefonte, Too.

Every growing, ambitious town is composed of three elements. Those who work patriotically, vigorously and intelligently for its advancement; those who are in a state of apathy or indifference; and those who take a curious delight in discouraging the efforts of others by ridicule, by a persistent denial that any progress can or has been accomplished and by boast of every other town beside their own. The last class are called croakers, but they are really something worse, for their opposition dose not arise simply from despondency, but from that unenviable spirit which will neither act itself nor suffer others to act.—Ex.

Milton is Coming.

Mr. J. S. McCargar returned from Milton this morning and reported that the fire company of that place, with band, would attend the fourth of July celebration in Bellefonte. He also reported that delegations would be present from Sunbury, Williamsport, and other towns in the West branch valley.

Wants to Go Upwards

There is a man out in Ohio who wants to come to Bellefonte and make a balloon ascension on the fourth of July. He goes up in a balloon a distance of one thousand feet or more, then he will jump from his air ship and descend to the ground with only a parachute in his hand. For this exhibition he asks only $300.

Be Sure

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me buy their brown instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other.

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." MRS. ELLA A. GOFF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

Miles—Rebersburg	Tuesday, " 16
Haines—Aaronsburg	Wednesda. " 17
Gregg—Spring Mills	Thursday, " 18
Centre Hall and Potter—Centre Hall,	Friday. " 19
Walker—Hublersburg	Monday, " 22

Special examinations will be held at Spring Mills, Tusscarora, Howard, Unionville, Philipsburg and Bellefonte, Aug. 17, 18, 19, 20, 21 and 22 respectively; and at Bellefonte September 12 and 26. All examinations will begin at 9 a. m.

Applicants will be examined in all branches without regard to former marks.

By Sec. CC School Laws of Penna., candidates for certificates are required to be examined in that district in which they shall first apply for a school, or in which they expect to apply first.

A teacher without character is worse than no teacher. Applicants must present testimonials of character from the Board for which they last taught, or from that for which they expect to teach.

Directors will please be very careful in recommending. To refuse an improper person may offend that individual; but to recommend an unfit person will wrong a whole community

Persons failing to qualify at the regular examinations may have a second trial at any of the specials.

Much of the work will be oral. Directors and citizens are invited to be present.

Editor Focht in Lewisburg News.

The bill that made Union and Snyder counties a separate judicial district, where a Judge will receive $4,000 for eight weeks' work, was brought about by the most daring manipulation ever directed from Union county. It included bold wire-pulling in Centre, in Huntingdon, in Mifflin and in Snyder counties, in which operation the forces gathered during twenty years in the people's service were let loose to complete a deal that is branded all over with infamy. Revolutions that have made the gates of Athens and the Eternal City tremble, that have rent and shattered European empires and laid waste continents, have been caused by no greater outrage upon the people than this unholy judical apportionment bill.

Drunkenness, or the Liquor Habit, Positively Cured by administering Haines' Golden Specific.

It is manufactured as a powder, which can be given in a glass of beer, a cup of coffee, or tea, or in food, without the knowledge of the patient. It is absolutely harmless, and will affect a permanent and speedy cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. It has been given in thousands of cases, and in every instance a perfect cure has followed. It never Fails. The system once impregnated with the Specific, it becomes an utter impossibility for the liquor appetite to exist. Cures guaranteed. 48 page book of particulars free. Address

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

Bardsley Pleads Guilty.

PHILADELPHIA, June 9.—John Bardsley, ex-city treasurer of Philadelphia, was brought up from Moyamensing prison this morning and arraigned in the court of quarter sessions, before Judges Fell and Wilson, on seventeen separate indictments, charging him with loaning money as a public officer, deriving gain from the deposit of public money and converting public money to his own use.

When Bardsley was asked how he pleaded he pleaded guilty to every count of the indictment. District Attorney Graham addressed the court and stated that, in view of Bardsley's plea and the fact that his counsel has not had time to examine the bills of indictment, he would not press for sentence to be pronounced at once. It was then arranged that this day two weeks should be set for hearing the evidence for and against Bardsley, and the court could then weigh it and pronounce sentence. In the seventeen indictments on which Bardsley pleaded guilty the total amount of money involved is $673,805.

Millersville Normal Anniversary.

The Pennsylvania State Normal School at Millersville is the oldest in the State. One of its early principals, under whom it won almost a national reputation, was Dr. J. P. Wickersham, of Lancaster, Pa.

In the summer of 1866, Dr. Wickersham resigned the principalship of the Normal School to become Superintendent of Public Instruction of Pennsylvania. The twenty-fifth anniversary of his promotion will be celebrated by a general Reunion of his former students, at Millersville, at the time of the annual Commencement, July 1st. and 2nd, 1891.

The sudden death of Dr. Wickersham in the midst of the preparations for this celebration, will certainly change the character of the occasion; hundreds of the old students expect to be present to do honor to their former teacher, and the Alumni Exercises on the evening of July 1st. will be Memorial Services.

Won by Hillibish & Co.

The letting for the putting in of new water closets in the stone school building, putting concrete pavement in the cellar and running a drain from the school house to the creek, closed on Tuesday at noon, and the school board met Tuesday evening to open and consider the bids. Only two bids for the whole work were received, one from R. J. Schadd & Co., the other from Hillibish & Co. The contract was awarded Hillibish & Co., conditionally. The board refused to make the several bids public today but will give them out to-morrow.

Renovo's Band Tournament.

Renovo is going to have a big time at the band tournament to be held in that place on the 16th and 17th. Numerous arches will be erected across the principal streets and the town will be gaily decorated. A large number of bands will be present and the occasion will be a notable event in the history of Renovo and of that section of the county. Wonder if any Centre county bands will attend?

GRAINS OF GOLD.

He is gentle that doth gentle deeds.

The society of women is the element of good manners.

That which is called cynicism is often only disagreeable truth.

A judicious silence is always better than truth spoken without charity.

Faith, wisdom, love, seek reasons; malice seeks only causes.—[Lavater.

If a man has nothing to say, he is sure to take much time and use many words in saying it.

Great minds are too busy with great things, his and deeds to be annoyed much by small insults.

The highest exercise of charity is charity toward the uncharitable. So says a French philosopher.

Never confide in a young man—new pails leak. Never tell your secrets to the aged—old doors seldom shut closely.

The wise prove, and the foolish confess by their conduct, that a life of employment is the only life worth living.—[Paley.

The man who would be known and not know should vegetate in a village; but he would know and not be known should live in a city.

As the soil, however rich it may be, can not be productive without culture, so the mind, without cultivation, can never produce good fruit.—[Seneca.

The happy have whole days, and those they choose;
The unhappy have but hours, and those they lose.
—[Colley Cibber.

Poverty and riches are but the names of want and sufficiency. He who wants can not be accounted rich; he who wants nothing ought not to be called poor.

When learning is conjoined with piety, it is like the diamond glittering and sparkling in a setting of gold, or like golden apples in dishes of silver.—[Scriver.

A modest person seldom fails to gain the good will of those he converses with, because nobody envies a man who does not appear to be pleased with himself.—[Steele.

Of all the causes which conspire to blind
Man's erring judgment and misguide the mind,
What the weak head with strongest bias rules
Is pride, the never failing vice of fools.
—[Pope.

Love is that powerful and prevalent passion by which all the faculties and inclinations of the soul are determined, and in which both its perfection and happiness depend.—[Scougal.

Ambition is a powerful motive, and if it be directed only to honorable and valuable issues it is a righteous one; but where it leads to what is false and hollow, or turns means into an end, it is a curse to its possessors.

Man's rich with little were his judgment true;
Nature is frugal, and her wants are few;
These few wants, answered, bring sincere delights;
But fools create themselves new appetites.
—[Young.

The law of harmony between work and rest, when fully obeyed, not only maintains strength, but develops it. All intelligent people know that fact, but many fail to think of it in such a way as to be governed by it. To exercise the muscles of the arms until they are tired, and then thoroughly rest them, and again to exercise them and rest, makes them grow stronger and bigger. So with the brain—it becomes stronger under well regulated exercise and rest.

PROGRESS OF SCIENCE.

A new refrigerator makes its own ice.

Electrical smelting furnaces are to come next.

The discovery has been made that bichloride of gold hypodermically administered will cure drunkenness.

The effect of removing tassels from corn is to turn the strength of the plant to the ovaries, and so produce a larger amount of grain.

In the new Anglo-French telephone cable the four cores are wound around each other in a spiral or strand to obviate the effects of induction.

An instrument called the hæmatokrit, based on centrifugal action, has been invented for determining the volume of corpuscles present in blood.

Many railroads are introducing brake-shoes on both sides of the wheel, the claim being made that the braking power is thus more efficiently employed.

By a new device, pieces of metal can be stamped with greater rapidity by being first rendered plastic by an electric current just before the stroke of the dies.

The French chemists who some months ago succeeded in making small rubies have now overcome all the difficulties and can make them of very much larger dimensions.

A new theory in relation to the moon has lately been advanced, to the effect that the lights and shadows of the moon are incompatible with the theory of its spherical shape.

In its native habitat the shell of the oyster is always a little open, and microscopic, waving hairs set up currents which carry the food plants to its mouth, where they are engulfed and afterward digested.

Asphalt paint is rapidly coming into favor for iron work. Its oils are not volatile, as in the case of the various coal tar products, and it is this permanent character of the material that is the secret of its value.

The navy has purchased a paper boat. After the trial of the material for this craft at the New York Navy Yard, a New York firm was ordered to build a "whale-boat gig." The frame is of wood, but the covering is of prepared paper which, it is asserted, will withstand the changes of temperature and the effects of submergence. The trials demonstrated its merits in the latter direction, and it was found not to absorb water. It is about 20 per cent lighter than a wooden boat of the same dimensions and the cost is merely nominal after a mold has once been made. The gig just completed for the Government will cost $1,500, which is about the cost of a wooden boat, but future paper gigs can be constructed at a little above the expense of the material. The gig will be placed on one of the new vessels.—[New York Tribune.

TWO SERIOUS CHARGES,

HE STOLE HORSES AND EMBEZZLED FROM HIS EMPLOYERS.

On warrants sworn out by Samuel H. Bothermel, of Ashland, Schuylkill county, a member of the lumber firm of Mowery, Rothermel & Wagner, doing business in Penn township, Centre county, W. J. Wirth, foreman for the above firm, was arrested here last evening, on the charges of larcenry and embezzlement. The warrants were issued by Justice of the Peace J. B. Linn, of Bellefonte, and were brought here by Constable Montgomery. Alderman Jones endorsed the warrants and Captain Worrell served them. Mr. Wirth was brought before Alderman Jones, who informed him that the total bail had been fixed at $2,500. As it was too late to secure bail Mr. Wirth remained in charge of Captain Worrell during last night.

The charge of larceny is that Mr. Wirth stole four horses, harness, etc. that the firm claimed as their property. He was also charged with embezzling the sum of $500 which the information stated was sent for the purpose of settling the pay roll.

THE DEFENDANT'S VERSION.

Mr. Wirth was seen by a Gazette and Bulletin representative last evening and gave his side of the affair. In January, 1890, he went to work for the lumber firm of Mowery, Rothermel & Wagner, in their camp, in Centre county, about six miles from Coburn, as foreman, at a certain salary. On July 10th of the same year he started three horses, his property, to work, and on August 8th he put on the fourth horse. He worked these horses from those dates up until March, 1891, and kept an account of the work done, charging at the rate of fifty cents per day for each horse.

THE TEAMS

At this time the firm talked of buying the team, but no sale was consummated, as no money or paper was received by Mr. Wirth. He said he would make the sale as soon as the firm was ready. He wanted pay for the hire of the horses up until that time, but the firm did not wish to settle. Up to the time he quit the firm's employ—last Monday—the labor of the horses amounted to $470.50.

RECEIVED MONEY TO PAY OFF.

At regular times during his employment by this firm Mr. Wirth received money from them with which he paid off the men, the balance he charged himself with, giving the firm credit for the amounts. On Monday he received $500 which he gave the firm credit for, and applied it to the labor of the horses. He also claimed $92.11 was due him as salary; he gave them credit for $55, which amount was his blacksmith bill. He now claims that there is a balance due him of $7.61.

On last Monday Mr. Wirth left the camp with the teams and came to this city. He expects to furnish the required amount of bail this morning.—Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin.

Look here, Friend, are You Sick?

Do you suffer from Dyspepsia, Indigestion Sour Stomach, Liver Complaint, Nervousness, Lost Appetite, Billiousness, Exhaustion or tired feeling, Pains in Chest or Lungs, Dry Cough, Night-sweats, Nervous Debility, or any form of Consumption? If so, send to Prof. Hart, 88 Warren St., New York, who will send you free, by mail, a bottle of medicine which is a sure cure. Send to-day. d&w-tf

Never do to-day what you can put off until to-morrow, is the motto of many men in this town.

TO CONSUMPTIVES

The undersigned having been restored to health by simple means, after suffering for several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease "Consumption," is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure. To those who desire it, he will cheerfully send (free of charge) a copy of the prescription used, which will find a sure cure for Consumption, Asthma, Catarrh, Bronchitis and all throat and lung Maladies. He hopes all sufferers will try his Remedy, as it is invaluable. Those desiring the prescription, which will cost them nothing and may prove a blessing, will please address REV. EDWARD A. WILTON, Williamsburg, Kings County, New York.

The Terrible Bombardment.

One of the most attractive as well as amazing things about the coming production of the Siege of Sebastapol at Harrisburg, commencing Tuesday, June 16, is the terrible bombardments, in which the huge warships, that will be stationed on the lake, will take an active part. These immense vessels will fire broadside against the huge forts, while the land forces will add to the general excitement by their determined charge and terrible canonadings. It will be a scene of war and carnage that is seldom offered to the present generation, and as the whole affair is carried on on such a tremendous scale it almost appears as if the actual scene of strife that stirred the whole world were being re-enacted. Ten exhibitions will be given, on Tuesday, Thursdays and Saturday.

Good Looks.

Good looks are more than skin deep, depending upon a healthy condition of all the vital organs. If the liver be inactive you have a bilious look, if your stomach be disordered you have a dyspeptic look and if your kidneys be affected you have a pinched look. Secure good health and you will have good looks. Electric Bitters is the great alterative and tonic and acts directly on these vital organs. Cures pimples, blotches, boils, and gives a good complexion. Sold at C. M. Parrish's drug store, 50c. per bottle.

The "Fourth" at Bellefonte.

Bellefonte is to have a grand Fourth of July celebration by the military, civic and the firemen. Preparations are being made to have it the best thing of the sort ever held in that borough and a grand time no doubt will be the result. Ex-Governor Curtin, the "old man eloquent," is to be the orator of the day. We acknowledge receipt of invitation to be present—L. H. Democrat.

—Master Robert Valentine caught a trout on Thursday that measured 12 inches.

A Serious Charge.

WEST CHESTER, Pa., June 3.—Mrs. Blanche Woodward Young, the pretty young widow of J. Norris Young, was arrested to-day on the charge of having administered the poison which caused her husband's death. Mrs. Young, when the warrant of arrest was read to her, broke down and sobbed convulsively, protesting her innocence and frantically imploring the officer not to take her to prison. At the hearing this afternoon many neighbors testified that the couple lived unhappily together. The principal direct testimony was given by Mrs. Mary Ipard, a near neighbor of the Youngs. She said she frequently heard the couple quarreling, and told of a conversation, in the course of which Mrs. Young said that she hated her husband and that she would "give him a slow dose some day." Mrs Ipard testified further that the young wife often expressed her admiration for the young men in the neighborhood and a dislike for her husband.

Dr. Formad, the Philadelphia expert, testified as to the result of the examination of the stomach, which had been taken from the exhumed body of Young. He found, he said, sufficient arsenic therein to have produced death.

Dr. Jordan, who was Young's attending physician, and who gave the certificate of death from cholera morbus, said his suspicions as to the cause were not aroused until the day before the man's death. He, however, had no real basis for suspecting wrong and so gave the certificate.

At the conclusion of the testimony Mrs. Young was remanded for trial, and she went sobbing to her cell with her year old baby in her arms.

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., June 3.—A terrible accident, resulting in the death of five men and the wounding of eight others, all dangerously, occurred in J. L. Gordon's saw mill, near Bowling Green, Caroline county, yesterday.

The men were at work near the engine room when the boiler burst, and they were caught in a shower of missiles and scalding water, several of them being buried in the ruins The uninjured employes hurried to the rescue, medical aid was immediately summoned, and everything done to relieve the injuries of those taken out alive.

The names of the killed are: Wm. Seef, Lawrence Hayes, Wm. James, John Fry (colored) and Wesam Catlett. Seven other colored men and and one white were rescued alive, but their injuries are so serious that all may die. The cause of the explosion is not yet known.

Dry Weather.

The records at the Pittsburgh signal office show that the recent drought throughout Pennsylvania was the dryest in 21 years. They show that the 30 days beginning April 16th and ending May 15th, both dates inclusive, has been the dryest during 21 years. Summing up the rain fall for this period, the following is found: The average rainfall for the past 21 years, for the 30 days ending May 15th, has been 3.04 inches; this year the total rainfall has only been 0.43 inches. The nearest approach to this was in 1871, when 0.78 inches fell. Other years, when the rain was deficient during this period, were in 1872, with 0.92 inches; 1879, with 1.23 inches, and 1885, with 1.32 inches.

—The gamblers following the Wallace circus took about $5,000 out of Ridgway, says the Elk Gazette. This would seem like pretty fair wages, especially since they have very little capital invested, over and above three walnut shells and a small ball.

A Senator's Opinion.

HON. EUGENE HALE, United States Senator from Maine, was a life-long friend and companion of Dr. Wm. H. Brown. He employed him professionally; had opportunities of observing him at his practice, and considered him one of the ablest men of his time. Mr. Hale had occasion, after the death of Dr. Brown, to use his preparation of Sarsaparilla, and sent a message from Washington requesting that a case of the great family medicine be forwarded, which was complied with at once. In due season Mr. Hale acknowledged the receipt of the Brown's Sarsaparilla, and at the same time said:

I had great confidence in the late Dr. Brown's medical sagacity and skill

Yours very truly,

Eugene Hale

If this preparation was only a common mixture, we should not call your attention to it, but it is unlike any other ever formulated; has been in use by eminent physicians for years, and is to-day the best remedy, in every sense of the word, in the world, for all forms of kidney, liver and blood diseases, and never fails to cure. Now is the time to cleanse the system, purify the blood, revive the liver and give tone and elasticity to the whole body. You can do it with a bottle of

WHAT IS SAPOLIO?

It is a solid handsome cake of scouring soap which has no equal for all cleaning purposes except in the laundry. To use it is to value it...

What will SAPOLIO do? Why it will clean paint, make oil-cloths bright, and give the floors, tables and shelves a new appearance. It will take the grease off the dishes and off the pots and pans. You can scour the knives and forks with it, and make the tin things shine brightly. The wash-basin, the bath-tub, even the greasy kitchen sink will be as clean as a new pin if you use SAPOLIO. One cake will prove all we say. Be a clever housekeeper and try it.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS. THERE IS BUT ONE SAPOLIO.

ROBERT NEILSON, Gen'l Pass. Agt.

A NEW FAIR GROUNDS.

AND RACE TRACK TO BE PUT DOWN FOR BELLEFONTE.

Agreeable to the call published in the DAILY NEWS a number of men met in the gentlemen's reading room of the Brockerhoff House on Friday evening to see if arrangements could be made to further the interest of the race track. Before proceeding to downright business the matter was discussed and it was mutually agreed that the purpose was to organize a stock company, purchase and permanently fit up grounds suitable for the holding of an agricultural fair and on which there is to be a half-mile race track.

An organization of Friday night's meeting was effected by electing Mr. John Meese President, and Mr. S. M. Buck secretary. Several locations were reported but the only one that seemed at all likely to suit was a piece of ground owned by the Brockerhoffs, just south of the Haas' brewery: As this is a good location and there seemed to be no objections to it, a committee composed of Messrs. J. M. Bunnell, J. S. Waite and Philip Beezer, was appointed to inspect the grounds and make report if they would do; and also to inquire into the probable cost of same. Messrs. S. M. Buck, Will Lyon and Thomas A. Shoemaker were appointed a committee to estimate on the probable cost of putting the grounds in shape after it was once purchased and paid for.

These committees will make their investigations and report at a meeting to be held next Monday evening. If everything is satisfactory steps will at once be taken to organize a stock company and the grounds will be purchased and fitted up complete and permanent. It is the intention to open it this season. Now let everybody interested in the welfare of the town boom this movement. Let us have a fair grounds with a race track, and let us show the people of the outside world that Bellefonte is neither dead nor sleeping.

Across the Deep, to the Far West,

On steamboats, cars and stage-coaches. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is carried as the most important item in the materia medica of the traveling public. It deprives vitiated, brackish water of its hurtful propertirs and execrable flaver, counteracts the pernicious effect upon the stomach of bad or indigestible food, remedies cramps, heartburn and wind upon the stomach. It is a fine defense against malarial disorders, nullifies the effect of excessive heat cold and damp, relieves sick-headache, and is an incomparable cure for costiveness and billiousness. The fatigue of travel often tells most disastrously upon invalids and convalescents, occasionally to such an extent as to jeopardize life. Person in feeble health. apprehensive of bad effect from travel, will, if provided with the Bitters, be far less likely to have their fears realized.

New Officers Elected.

On Thursday evening the Bellefonte Temperance Union elected the following officers for the ensuing term: President, J. Linn Harris; Vice President, Andrew Loneberger; Secretary, Newton Gibson; Treasurer, Elmer Straub; Assistant Secretary, John Morgan; Executive Committee, H. C. Valentine, Isaac Underwood, Chas. F. Cooke. The new officers will be installed with imposing ceremony at the next regular meeting, next Thursday evening. Also at that time the revision of the present constitution will come up for discussion. The meeting Thursday evening was largely attended and very enthusiastic and it is a credit to Bellefonte and to the individuals who were instrumental in starting it that such a good organization as the Temperance Union exists in this place. Long may it flourish.

Guaranteed Cure for La Grippe.

We authorize our advertised druggist to sell Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, upon this condition. If you are afflicted with La Grippe and will use this remedy according to directions, giving it a fair trial, and experience no benefit, you may return the bottle and have your money refunded. We make this offer because of the wonderful success of Dr. King's New Discovery during last season's epidemic. Have heard of no case in which it failed. Try it. Trial bottles free at C. M. Parrish's drug store. Large size 50c. and $1.00.

There are more divorces granted annually in the United states than in all the rest of the civilized world put to gether.

There Will be no Humes Street.

The oldest of the citizens of Bellefonte will probably remember that a long time ago an ordinance was passed by council opening a street from Bishop to Curtin at the eastern line of the borough of Bellefonte; also opening all cross streets out to the new street which was to be called Humes street. The necessary formalities had been gone through, damages assessed by a board of viewers, etc., and everybody but one man seemed glad that a new street was to be opened up. Said one man appealed and filed exceptions to the proceedings on the grounds that he had not been given notice by council before the ordinance was passed. The case was argued in court on Tuesday and, as the law, unfortunately, is thus technically constructed, the one man won his case, the court set aside the proceedings and Humes street will not be opened just now. The only thing that can now be done is to commence all over again and do the work from the beginning. This is another of those instances which very fully demonstrates the vast importance of being sure you are right, then go ahead.

A Big Price For Trout.

ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS PAID FOR ANGLING IN A PRIVATE STREAM.

Constable Kelley, of this city, went to Philadelphia about two weeks ago to interview Thomas B. Hoffman in regard to some trout fishing of his in waters controlled by the Big Bear Creek Fishing club, of this city. Thomas, not desiring to be bothered any further with the matter, handed over the sum of $100 the penalty for such an offense. The members of the above club express themselves to the effect that they will prosecute to the extent of the law every person infringing upon their rights. The act of June 3, 1878. under which private streams are protected is very plain on the subject. Section 21 provides as follows: "Any person trespassing on any lands for the purpose of taking fish from any private pond, stream or spring, after public notice on the part of the owner or occupant thereof, such notice being posted adjacent to such pond, stream or spring shall be deemed guilty of trespass, and in addition to damages recoverable by law shall be liable to the owner, lessee or occupant in a penalty of $100 for every such offense."—Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin.

Convincing Proof.

On Friday afternoon a gentleman from Pittsburg inserted a six line advertisement in the DAILY NEWS for bricklayers and carpenters wanted. In two hours after the paper was off press the man had egnaged almost a score of men, all of whom saw the advertisement in the NEWS hunted up the man to get a job. The advertiser himself called at this office and said that he had never from any paper received such large return in such a short time as he did from this one, and that in the future he should use it exclusively. A word to the wise, etc.

WHAT IT WILL BE.

A FEW FACTS CONCERNING NEXT TUESDAY NIGHT'S RECEPTION.

Ever since the sending out on Wednesday evening of the invitations to the Bellefonte Club reception the ladies of this place have done nothing but talk about the coming event. Those who were of the 400 are discussing what they will wear, how they will wear it and how will they will look when they do wear it. Also who all will be there, who "got left," the music, refreshments, et cetera. Of course it would be an utter impossibility for the DAILY NEWS to tell how everyone will be arrayed but, at a venture, we advise all the ladies to dress their best as your neighbor will do likewise. As to the gentlemen, the majority of them will, no doubt, be resplendent in full dress suits, patent leather shoes and button-hole bouquets.

Now as to the reception: There were about 400 invitations sent out—no complimentaries—and every person that received one is expected to attend. The reception will begin promptly at 8.30 o'clock when the Stopper & Fisk celebrated orchestra, of Williamsport, to be composed of eight pieces, will strike up the grand march. The receiving will be done in the handsomely furnished rooms of the club on the second floor of Bush's Arcade, though the entire floor will be devoted to the use of the occasion, with the exception of the rooms occupied by the Telephone company. The dancing will take place in the large east room on the third floor while the refreshments will be served in the large west room on the third floor. The refreshments will be all that the inner man can desire and will be served in the latest epicurean style. Fity chickens have already been engaged to furnish the necessary meat for the chicken salad.

The Bellefonte Club has now been in existence a couple of years and this will be its first reception. The Club is composed of the cream of Bellefonte society. There is a membership of 56 resident members and forty some honorary members. To belong to it one must have a full purse and the entree to the 'charmed circle," the 400 of Bellefonte. Mr. Robert Valentine is President of the same and Mr. John Lane Secretary. The Club intends making the event of the 11th instant one of par excellence.

Mrs. Young Discharged.

PHILADELPHIA, June 5.—A special to the Ledger from West Chester, Pa., says: The habeas corpus case of Mrs. Blanche Young, charged with administering poison to her husband, J. Norris Young, which caused his death, was heard before Judge Hemphill this afternoon. Dr. Jordon, who attended Young in his last illness, and Dr. Formad, of Philadelphia, who made the post mortem on the body, were recalled, but their testimony did not materially differ from that given previously. At the conclusion of the argument Judge Hemphill discharged Mrs. Young, on the ground that the evidence was not sufficient to hold her.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Fix Up the Road Signs

The following good advice from the Williamsport Grit and B. applies as well in this county as in Lycoming: It is very annoying to any one who travels over country roads, that are strange to a person, to find that by taking the wrong road he has traveled several miles away from, instead of toward the point for which he had started. Of course sign boards are the only reliable directions, but one-half the time the names and "fists" are obliterated by weather and age, and cause one to go in contrary directions. The Lycoming county sign boards at cross roads are sadly in need of paint, and it would be a blessing to travelers if the proper parties would give them proper attention."

Consumption Surely Cured.

TO THE EDITOR:—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above-named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy FREE to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their Express and P. O. address. Respectfully, T. A. SLOCUM, M. WHY!

WHEREFORE. The virtues or merits of a remedy for pain do not consist in its being as good for relief as other remedies, but in the fact that it is better, in being more prompt and sure, and therefore the best for the specific purpose. It is not an idle catchline that strikes the eye thus:

ST. JACOBS OIL
THE GREAT REMEDY FOR PAIN, IS THE BEST.

It is the best cure for all aches and pains, and it holds

THE TRUE PROOF.

To this specific fact Archbishops, Bishops, Clergymen, Lawyers, Doctors, Governors, Generals, Senators, Members of Congress and Legislatures, U. S. Consuls, Army and Navy Officers Mayors and Officials, testify and unite in saying: "We suffered pain;

OTHER REMEDIES FAILED,

and St. Jacobs Oil cured promptly and permanently." For the same reason finds what he seeks and needs, is not deceived and will have it at any price.

THE HOUSEKEEPER'S FOES.

THE NAUGHTY WAYS OF THE MOTH AND BUFFALO BUG.

It is now time to look for moths, and to put away all furs and woollen garments that will not be used during the summer. Like so many insects which are pests of the household, the common moth lays its eggs late in April. If the clothing and furs are put away before it has had a chance to get to them all trouble will be avoided. It is well to use camphor or some similar thing in wrapping up valuable articles, because the moth avoids an atmosphere saturated with any of the various "moth exterminators;" but this is all. If she has already laid her eggs, saturating the goods with the odor of camphor, tar or anything else will be of no avail. The grubs will hatch out in cedar trunks and thrive as well there as anywhere else when they are used to it. When clothing is put away, hang it first outdoors in the air and beat it thoroughly, to be sure that nothing ha already got in it; and then it can be packed with tolerable security against the ravages of the ordinary white moth. The practice in some families of leaving old coats, felt hats and other castoff woollen articles, that are never worn, hanging in closets, is sure, sooner or later, to draw moths. Such articles should be given away systematically where they will do some good and cannot become a source of harm, as they surely are when left untouched for moths in dark closets.

The carpet beetle is quite different from an ordinary moth. It also lays its eggs during this month and its hairy little grub hatches out and begins to eat almost anything that lies in its way. Fortunately this pest has not yet appeared all over the country and there are many sections of the land entirely free from its ravages. Though the grub of the buffalo beetle is an omnivorous feeder, the beetle, in its winged state, is a strict vegetarian and never touches wool. It is especially fond of the spirea and plants of allied species, and for this reason these shrubs should no longer be familiary cultivated in our dooryards as they are now. After the buffalo beetle has once set up a claim in any house it is exceedingly difficult to dislodge it. After it has then passed through the grub state and fed to its full on your most valuable carpets, books and anything that comes in its way, it flies away a beetle to live on a strict plant diet and disport itself in the sunshine. But it never for a moment forgets where it came from or mistakes your house for your neighbor's when it gets ready to lay its eggs. Nothing is more exasperating than its reappearance after months of absence in exactly the same corner of the carpet or bookcase where it was before, or the avidity with which the third or fourth generation seems to follow the habits of their ancestors and eat in the same exact geometric lines, never making a zag in all their work. Nothing will ever dislodge them but spraying the spot profusely with benzine. They enjoy tobacco, camphor refreshes them and tar builds up their strength to renewed efforts.

The buffalo beetle is somewhat smaller than the little "lady bug" for which it is unhappily often mistaken. It is black with white spots or blotches with a bright red line down the centre of its back. It has a deceitful way of curling up its legs and pretending to be dead when discovered. Do not believe this, but crush it unmercifully, for in a few moments, if you watch it on the sly, it will get up and walk away as ablebodied and insolent a bug as ever flew.

The little lady bug or cochinella, which is so often confounded with the buffalo bug or anthrenus, is an entirely different creature and should be encouraged and cultivated as one of the strongest allies of the gardener and farmer in his fight with insects noxious to vegetation. The common species of cochinella is a coral red with black spots on its wings, though there are several varieties. It feeds upon the aphides or plant lice which are more destructive to plants than any insect we have, and, but for the little lady bug, would soon destroy everything before them. In England the lady bug or "lady bird" of the nursery rhymes is protected with the greatest care.

Triumph of Pharmacy

The only true practical

ELIXIR OF LIFE AND HEALTH.

is one that promotes digestion, improves the appetite, cleanses the liver, purifies the blood, and stimulates brain and nerves without injurious reaction, and one that may be taken alike by adult or infant. Profane compounds, made of vile rum or bad whiskey, sweetened and flavored, under the titles of bitters, tonics, &c, produce effects far worse than the disease for which they are taken

Vinegar Bitters is a pure tonic, a nervine without being narcotic, a purifier without poison, a liver tonic without purging, and above all, a life-giving stimulant without alcohol. The only medicine with such powers in the world.

A GENUINE TEMPERANCE BEVERAGE,

far surpassing alcohol in any shape as a tonic it might be called

LIQUID LIFE,

since it stimulates, invigorates and regulates digestion, nutrition, secretion, excretion, respiration, and all the functions whereby life is maintained—we literally take in vitality in spoonfuls,

It is too much to assert that the equal of Vinegar Bitters does not exist, as no counterpart or compound with similar virtues has ever been known if remarkable for nothing else, would be immortalized by the production of the medicinal fruits roots and herbs of which this Bitters is composed. Many of them used by the Indians and the medical profession in the treatment of chills and fevers, rheumatism, catarrh, consumption, neuralgia, headaches, liver complaint, kidney disease, jaundice, gout, piles, boils, skin diseases, &c., &c., too numerous to mention, but easily understood when the action of the Bitters on the vital functions is remembered. Local Department.

CALIFORNIA,

—Harvest time approacheth.

—The cherries are ripening.

—Has Bellefonte a select 400?

—The roses are coming in bloom.

—Did you ever play "Baccarat?"

—The Itatia has at last surrendered.

—New potatoes will soon be in the market.

—This summer is not very hard on ice.

—The grain is coming out in heads.

—Less than one month until the fourth of July.

—What a faithful day's rain that was on Sunday.

—The bloomin' summer girl is already a little overdue.

—Centre county jail has nine boarders on its registry list.

—There are 447 inmates in the Huntingdon Reformatory.

—Strawberries are selling some places at two boxes for fifteen cents.

—The rain is over for this time and the sun—good and hot—is here.

—They are to be found in most every garden in Bellefonte—onions.

—There is every evidence of better times in the near future.

—Workmen are now busy repairing the burned house of Governor Beaver.

—What makes it so foggy and smoky these mornings? Who can explain?

—Arthur Rothrock was arrested Saturday evening and is again in jail.

—This is the week for the holding of appeals by the county commissioners.

—Persons who had no fire on Sunday would doubtless feel very chilly.

—Marriages are getting somewhat scarce, judging from the license docket.

—Aren't those dandy posters, the "big ones" for the fourth of July celebration?

—The matrimonial market is dull to the extreme, and takers of this kind of stock are at present scarce.

—We are glad to see Mr. Hammon Sechler sufficiently recovered to be out and around again.

—The framework of Rev. J. A. Woodcock's new house on Lamb street was put up on Thursday.

—The court yard iron fence has been purchased by the borough and will likely soon be put around the big spring.

—If a person wants to be everlastingly accommodated they should not forget to return favors themselves sometimes.

—The original whale was quite a male-carrier, but Jonah probably first impressed upon him the need of a free-delivery system.

—One reason, perhaps, why the world moves so slow is because there are so many persons who want to sit on the fence and whistle.

—No insurgent vessel can fool around Uncle Sam and survive. It may be Chilli to think of it, but its a fact.

—If Bellefonte had a competing railroad several new industries would be brought to the town at once.

—Boom the race track and agricultural fair grounds project for all it is worth. There's money in it for all.

—From all appearances Mr. Daniel McGinley intends putting a new roof on his house on East Lamb street.

—Strawberries are now getting down in price so that editors can afford to buy a quart every two or three weeks.

—Huntingdon has about seventy-five new houses building this summer. Bellefonte has no need to build any as all she are not filled.

—New peas are now in market and they are selling for only 35 cents per half peck. They are still too rich for the blood of the average man.

—The new Valentine furnace is now running along very smooth and doing better work at far less expense than was ever done there. About eighty tons of metal per day is the average output.

—College commencement time is here and for the next four weeks the reports of same will be a prominent feature in the news of the day.

—On Monday afternoon two hack loads of nail workers went from this place to Lewistown to take the place of the striking workmen in that town.

—The average life of the dude, after a most thorough and careful computation, has been discovered to be only 18½ years.

—Remember the meeting at the Brockerhoff House this evening for all men interested in securing a race track near Bellefonte.

—It is now a struggle twixt the coal dealer and ice man as to which should have the trade, with chances in favor ot the former.

—See advertisement elsewhere in this paper for 100 bricklayers and 150 carpenters wanted. Pay large and work only 9 hours a day.

—Who says Bellefonte's industries wont start? Whoever is anyways skeptical let them go out to the Valentine furnace and be converted.

—We acknowledge receipt of an invitation to be present at the commencement exercises of Lafayette College, Easton, Pa., June 20th.

—Hon. A. O. Furst and Col. J. L. Spangler will both deliver memorial addresses before the Alumni of Dickinson Seminary, Williamsport, on Wednesday, June 17th.

—Only one marriage license was granted during the past week, that of Samuel Sharer, of Whiteside, Ill., and Sophia E. Young, of Ferguson township, this county.

—The Juniata Tribune, published at Mifflintown, issued a handsome number this week. Brother Bosnall gets out a good paper and no mistke.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Achenbach will go up the Hudson, through Canada and return by the Niagara Falls on their wedding tour. They will be away about two weeks.

—Tuesday at high noon the wedding of Mr. W. T. Achenbach, of this place, and Miss Lizzie West, of Philadelphia, was solemnized in the Grace M. E. Church, in Philadelphia.

—The majority of the people who have seen the photograph received by district attorney Meyer are of the opinion that the original man is Wilson. Hope it may prove correct.

—A reporter on the "Owl" has just discovered that General Beaver is repairing his house on corner of Lamb and Ridge streets, which was partly destroyed by fire some time ago.

—This being the week of county appeals quite a number of the residents of the county are thus brought to Bellefonte every day. On the whole, however, there are not very many appeals being made and, we guess, fewer reductions.

—Treasurer Gramley has been called to his home in Miles township twice within a week to attend the funerals of two of his friends. One was that of Mr. Jacob Kephart, and the other that of Mrs. Samuel Yearick, who was an aunt of Mrs. Gramley.

—The P. O. S. of A. expect to have a big time in Lock Haven on the fourth. The order is invited from all the neighboring six counties and four thousand people are expected in line.

—On Sunday a number of small boys built a cabin in Crider's lumber yard and therein built a large fire around which they congregated, telling stories and smoking cigarettes. They were chased away by Mr. Crider but the next time they do it they will be arrested.

—It is not very often that one hears of a lawyer trying to evade a client but it is an actual fact that on Friday afternoon the district attorney jumped out of his back window and skipped so that he might not be interviewed by a client.

—A large iron pipe has been buried for a sewer at the Humes crossing on Allegheny street across Howard. If the pipe extended entirely across the street and was buried about six inches deeper it might be an improvement; as it is, the crossing is just about as bad, and more dangerous, now than it was before.

—The Houser brothers, Messrs. H. L. and R. S., have just completed fencing the Snow Shoe railroad from Snow Shoe to the Bald Eagle. Altogether they built about forty miles of wire fence and the job is one of the best in this country. Any person desiring fencing of the above kind put up can not do better than employ the Messrs. Housers.

—The Pittsburg Dispatch has just moved into new quarters on the corner Smithfield and Diamond streets and it LOW, no doubt, feels as big as any of its eastern contemporaries. Well, so may it; there is not a better edited, cleaner, more wide awake newspaper published than just the Dispatch and it deserves unlimited success.

—Huntingdon's tax rate for 1891 is 6 mills for ordinary borough expenses, 2 mills for water and 3 mills for bonds, making a total of 11 mills. Bellefonte's tax rate is about 40 mills or almost four times that of Huntingdon and yet the people complain because there is no enterprise here or no new industries established.

—In a week or so the P. R. R. will, at the solicitation of the Baldwin Locomotive Works give a new 137,000 pound freight engine a series of trials on the heaviest grades between Hrrrisburg and Pittsburg. The largest freight engine now in service on the P. R. R. weighs 120,000 pounds. Great results are expected from the new steam monster.

—George B. Orlady and J. D. Dorris, Esqs., of Huntingdon, were in Bellefonte on Tuesday and argued the injunction case against Lewis E. Port, to prevent him from erecting a livery stable at Fourth and Washington streets, Huntingdon, which is now under way. Judge Furst did not dispose of the matter at the hearing, but will do so at argument court next week.

—Many a writer of note has received his first lesson from becoming a correspondent to the country press. You may write for practice or practice to write. The people of your section become interested in what you say. Thus you are encouraged to "press on" until, if you have talents in that line, the first thing you know, you are sought out by somebody, of whom you had never before heard, with the result that you find yourself famous. Send us in the happenings from your neighborhood and let the people know what you are doing.

—A party of Altoona fisherman went down to Licking Creek on Tuesday morning to catch trout. They were reasonably successful. On their return home they stopped for a short time at the Newton Hamilton dam and tried thier skill on the bass, but with little success. A Newton Hamilton youngster, however, had better luck and caught a bass that weighed 5 pounds, which one of the Altoona crowd purchased for $3.50 and took home, no doubt telling his friends he had caught it himself. We do not know wether that gentleman was our piscatorial friend Dern, of the Tribune, or not.

—That one of our circuit ministers, became disgusted with his flock because the revenue received did not cover his boarding expenses, and his congregation being incorrigible snorers, as well as mean contributors to the cause, he was soon obliged to abandon his charge. His farewell sermon to the lukewarm brethren was characterized by more heat than elegance. He ended thus: "At the last day the Lord will say to St. Peter: Where is, your flocks?' and St. Peter will answer, 'here Lord.' And so all the Shepherds can answer but when he asks me, 'Where are your sheep?' how will you feel when I am compelled to reply, 'Lord, I haven't any; mine were all hogs!'"—Raftman's Journal.

—A recent census of Johnstown, which now includes the various boroughs which were swept by the flood, shows that there has been an actual increase of 1,258 souls, notwithstanding the loss in 1889. Moreover, the town has been substantially rebuilt, seven new churches indicating the growth of the place in buildings of all kinds. One of the conspicuous new features of the city is the hospital built as a memorial out of the surplus of funds contributed for the relief of the inhabitants. Already the flood of two years ago is little more than a memory—a very sad memory for those who lost relatives and friends in the great rush of waters.

Still Progressing.

The movement for the new fair ground and race track is still progressing slowly. Another meeting was held on Monday night, but nothing definite was done. The committee on location has not yet made a permanent selection, and other sites will be looked up. It is all very well to look up locations but don't spend the summer at such work and forget to get the thing in operation.

Letter List.

The following letters remain uncalled for at the Bellefonte post-office June 8, '91.

Drape, Mr.; Sranownego, Tano; Swanson, Nora; Snyder Eugene; Thompson, Annie, Mrs.

When called for please say advertised.

J. A. FIEDLER, P. M.

They Have No Debt.

There are eighteen counties in Pennsylvania that have no debt. They are Lehigh, Beaver, Cameron, Centre, Columbia, Erie, Forest, Franklin, Green, Lawrence, Mercer, Montour, Perry, Pike, Sullivan, Susquehanna, Wyoming and York. The combined debt of all the other counties is $58,979,792.

HOW MATTERS ARE MOVING.

WHAT IS BEING DONE TOWARDS THE BIG CELEBRATION.

On Friday afternoon the fourth of July celebration committee of arrangements held a meeting in the office of Spangler and Hewes. Mr. Spangler reported progress in the matter of getting special trains one to leave Bellefonte at 10 o'clock Saturday night and run over the Bald Eagle to Tyrone and then out to Philipsburg; another to go over the Lewisburg road to Montandon. It is believed that no difficulty will be experienced in getting the desired trains, as both Supt. Blair, of Tyrone, and Passenger Agent Farrar, of Williamsport, are favorably inclined to do all they can. It was also voted to send invitations to Clearfield and Curwensville, and to the G. A. R. Posts throughout Centre county. Some committees were appointed to visit different places and work up an interest in favor of Bellefonte but as the majority of these were changed at a meeting held in the arbistration room in the evening it is not worth while giving them.

In the evening the committee held another meeting at which it was voted to send invitations to the Millheim and Boalsburg bands. Reports from the Finance committee showed about $600 already subscribed, and the members of that committee feel confident they can go it $200 better. It was decided to send an invitation to a fire company of Seneca Falls, N. Y. to be in Bellefont on the fourth. This invitation will be extended because the company is one of the finest in the country, and also because about that time it contemplates making a trip, for pleasure, through part of the state, and it is thought probable they might make it suit to spend that day in Bellefonte.

The committee voted to send Mr. J. S. McCargar to Lock Haven, Williamsport, Lewisburg, Sunbury and Milton, Capt Mullen to Tyrone; some person to Philipsburg, Clearfield and Curwensville, and C. L. Gates and Thomas Shaughency to to Altoona and Hollidaysburg. These parties are sent for the purpose of seeing that the bills are properly put up and also to work up an interest among the firemen invited to procure as large an attendance as possible. Before adjouring the committee voted to spend $100 for the fireworks exhibition and J. D. Sonrbek was instrcted to purchase the same at once; also that gentelman was selected as the one to have in charge the putting off of the same on the evening of the fourth, the exhibition to be made from the grand stand in the Dimond. Adjournedto meet Monday evening.

Other Side of the Case.

Of course everbody isn't married and they do not know that considertable devolves upon the house wife to keep things moving. Some kind friend of the ladies has gone to some trouble to show up the woman's side of the housekeeper and submits the following: In one year she gets dinner 365 times, washes the dishes 1,095 times, gets the children ready for school twice a day for 180 days, gets the baby to sleep 1,460 times, makes about 300 calls and wishes for something she hasn't every minute; she wishes 60 things an hour, 4,860 things in a year. Who says that a woman has nothing to do?

Mothers sohuld take warning and stop dosing their babies with laudanum while teething. Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup answers the same purpose and it is known to be perfectly harmless. 25 cts.

It is an actual crime to suffer from catarrh when you can buy Old Saul's Catrrh Cure for only 25 cents and get cured at once.

Mrs. Yearick Dead.

Mrs. Samuel Yearick died at her home near Madisonburg on Saturday from paralysis of the heart. The funeral occurred on Tuesday. The death of Mrs. Yearick is a severe stroke to Mr. Yearick who is also lying very ill with dropsy.

Death of E. Graham.

Mr. E. Graham died at his home on Allegheny street at noon on Tuesday. Mr. Graham was about 80 years of age and one of the oldest residents of Bellefonte. A large family of children are left to mourn their loss.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is on the flood tide of pupularity, which position it has reached by its own intrinsic undoubted merit.

Personal Pencilings.

Mr. James Schofield will depart for Ireland the last of next week.

Mrs. Thomas Riley, of Boalsburg, spent Wednesday in Bellefonte.

Mrs. Saltsman, of this place, has gone to Renovo to visit friends.

Ex-Judge and Mrs. Orvis departed on the 5.20 p. m. train west Monday evening.

Mrs. Hagerman and daughter Miss Sallie, have gone to Clearfield to visit.

Mr. James Milliken will depart next Monday on a trip to South Dakota.

Register John A. Rupp spent Wednesday in Oak Hall and Roalsburg.

Mr. William Lytle, of Halfmoon township, is a visitor in Bellefonte to-day

Mrs. John Coolidge, of Scranton, is visiting her sister, Mrs. S. D. Ray, on Curtin street.

Mrs. Weaver, of Clearfield, is we are glad to say now out of danger and her recovery is only a matter of time.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Reynolds, of Lancaster, are guests at the residence of Major Wm. F. Reynolds, on Linn street.

Mr. Jackson Wa son, one of Moshannon's enterprising citizens, was in Bellefonte to-day and while here paid his respects to this office.

Prof. D. O. Etters, wife and two children returned to Bellefonte Saturday morning after a two weeks visit with friends at State College.

Mrs. Licinger and Mrs. Will Bowser with her two children, all of Farradsville, Pa., who have been visiting in Bellefonte the guests of Mrs. Bowser's sister, Mrs. W. S. Port, returned home on Tuesday.

Mrs. Stewart Pearce and two children, of Conneaut, Ohio, arrived in town on Wednesday evening for a visit with Mrs. Pearce's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McGinley's, on East Lamb street.

Miss Carrie Orvis departed on Tuesday evening for Williamsport where she will attend the wedding of her friend, Miss Bessie Miller. She was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Canfield and children who have been visiting her for some time.

Mrs. J. B. Port and little daughter, of Huntingdon, are visiting in Bellefonte the guests of Mrs. Port's uncle, of East Howard street. Mrs. Port has been an invalid for some time past and through the urgent request of her husband and friends she has come to Bellefonte for the benefit of her health. Should she remain in Bellefonte long enough we think her health may be somewhat improved and her home brightened once more by her presence.

Base Ball Gossip.

Now since it is definitely settled that there will be no professional base ball team in Altoona this season, why do not some of the numerous amateur teams arrange to have out-of-town teams here to play? Tyrone has a team which should be played. Bellefonte has a team and the memory of three straight victories which the Centre county lads won from Altoona in '89, should stir up some ambition to retrieve that disgrace. Two games lost on Altoona grounds and one at Bellefonte, the latter by a one-sided score (12 to 7) should spur the Mountain City boys up a little.

State College has a team of gentlemanly players and a game with that club would, no doubt, draw well. Cartwright, a brother of the first baseman of last year's St. Louis Browns, is the pitcher and is said to be a good one. Other teams might be named but these are enough. Waken up boys and give Altoona "fans" some ball games.

Lee Woodcock does not join the Boston League team, as stated in these columns recently, but at the close of the Princeton College term, will pitch for the Bellefonte team—Altoona Chronicle.—In this respect we would just add that Bellefonte had better wake up and do some practicing too.

A Little Disruption.

Just now there seems to be a threatened eruption in the Bellefonte Club because the committee elected to pass upon the eligibility of the invitations to the reception black-balled a prominent society lady of Bellefonte, 'tis said. The young lady is up in arms, her friends are mad, the member who proposed her name is in no amiable mood and just now it looks as if there might be some trouble in picking out the 400 in Bellefonte.

IT MUST BE WILSON.

THE MAN AT MADISON, WIS., SEEMS TO BE THE ESCAPED MURDERER.

This morning District Attorney Meyer received a picture of the man in jail at Madison, Wisconsin, supposed to be John Wilson, the man who murdered Harry Waterhouse in this place and escaped from the Bellefonte jail in December. The picture has been adjudged by all who have ever seen it and who knew Wilson, to be a good likeness of the man. The features are identical and a description of the man is exactly that of Wilson. Another point is that the man refused to have his picture taken and it had to be done under protest.

A letter from the prison authorities says that the man confessed to knowing all about the murder of Waterhouse, and further stated that he knew the man who did it and that he saw him after he had escaped from the jail here. He explained the tattooed marks on his arms as being put there by the right man after he got away so that it would confuse the authorities and neither of them could be identified. When he found out what his picture was wanted for he said he would sooner have a picture sent in here than have a man come out to identify him, as he had made himself fat and big in the picture and they would not know him. If the above facts are true then there seems little doubt but that the man in Madison is Wilson. District-Attorney Meyer will investigate further and if everything turns out as related above a man will be sent out to identify him. The general impression, however, seems to be that he is the man.

Funeral of Mrs. Yearick.

The funeral of Mrs. Yearick, wife of Rev. Samuel Yearick, of the Evangelical church, and who lived at Madisonburg, occured on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. The services were held in the Yearick church, about three miles above Madisonburg, at which place interment was also made. The officiating minister was the pastor, Rev. S. Aurand, who was assisted by Revs. C. W. Finkbinder, of Millheim, and P. W. Widemeyer. The pall bearers were Revs. C. W. Finkbinder, P. W. Widemeyer, P. F. Jarret, C. B. Aurand, H. B. Hershinger and I. S. Frain, all ministers of the Evangelical church. The funeral was one of the largest that has taken place in that valley for years. Mrs. Yearick,s maiden was Schaffer, daughter of Adam Schaffer, Sen., of Madisonburg, and was aged 61 years, 9 months and 20 days. She was a consistent member of the church and an upright, Christian lady. Mr. Yearick, who is almost on the verge of death, being a sufferer of dropsy, was able on Tuesday to follow the remains of his beloved wife to their last resting place.

Human Instinct.

So powerful is human instinct, that some of its suggestions become embodied in social and household customs. The people know and feel that at the beginning of the spring season the system needs an alterative and a purifying tonic and stimulant. In all parts of the country it is the custom for the housewife to dose her brood with sassafras tea. Among the simple remedies that our ancestors employed, this decoction has continued to hold its own. The demand for a spring alterative and tonic, however, is filled more efficaciously by S. S. S., which is itself as simple as nature's remedial medicine should be. It purifies the blood, cleanses and strengthens the system, and prepares the human machine to stand the wear and tear of the summer months.

Fair Ground and Race Track.

On Saturday Messrs. Waite, Bunnell, Naginey, Brandon, Garman and Mullen measured the grounds spoken of as being selected as a favorable location for the new fair ground and race track and they report having found it quite large enough to hold a county fair and build a half-mile track. The expense of fixing it up will not be any more than for any other location within same distance of town. It looks very much as if the project will soon materialize.

Church Festival.

On Saturday next, June 13th, a festival will be held at Fillmore for the benefit of the Methodist Episcopal church of that place. All seasonable delicacies will be had and everybody is invited.
